

More All-American Stories, Photos, And Results

Ohio Couple

(Continued from Page A28)
 extra special since this was her first time competing at the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show. Howman himself is no stranger to competition here, but the couple is developing a new herd of Ayrshires and Holsteins. Iris was also named grand champion at the Ohio State Fair earlier this year and three local fairs in 1995.

Douglas Evans of Sunny Acres Farm in Georgetown, New York, was selected premier breeder and premier exhibitor of the show.

New York Family Dominates Milking Shorthorn Show

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Marjorie Anna Kuszlyk of Batavia, New York, exhibited the grand champion female of the All-American Milking Shorthorn Show last week at the Farm Show Complex. Her Kuszlyk Cattle Company entry, Pinesedge BT Alfair Exp, was also selected senior champion and winner in the senior two-year-old division.

John Paul Kuszlyk was selected premier exhibitor of the show. Between Marjorie and John Kuszlyk, they also exhibited the winning junior and senior heifer calf, reserve junior champion female, best dairy herd, best dam and daughter, and best three-year-old Evans also exhibited the reserve champion female and the best senior female bred and owned by the exhibitor, a senior three-year-old named Sunny Acres Bonnie Rose II. Evans, a 15-year veteran of All-American competition, has had a variety of winners in the past.

Whispering Wind Rebel Alona was the junior champion female of the show and best junior female bred and owned by the exhibitor, Russell Martin of Whispering Wind Ayrshires in Maryland.

The judge for the Ayrshire Show was David Hartford from Charlotte, Vermont.

The best senior female bred and owned by the exhibitor was Pinesedge FD Roan Pat, a junior two-year-old cow shown by Samuel Yoder of Pinesedge Farm, Batavia, New York. Wendy Yoder, also from the Pinesedge Farm family, was selected premier breeder of show.

The junior champion female of the show and the best junior female bred and owned by the exhibitor was Spring Meadows Jasmine Exp. The spring yearling heifer was exhibited by Karen Body and Mrs. J. W. Pratt of Urbana, Ohio.

John Burkette from East Freedom, Pennsylvania, was judge for the Milking Shorthorn Show.

New Farm Exhibits Holstein Champions

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Herb and June Kerr of Hudson Falls, New York, exhibited both the grand champion female and reserve champion female in Thursday's Eastern National Holstein Show, one of six breed shows held last week at the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show.

The grand champion was C Taraley Astro Sherry, winner in the five-year-old cow class. The reserve champion was C Desleduc Star Marie ET, an aged cow. The Kerrs' Pamtom Farm also exhibited the champion bull, Pamtom Mr New York-ET, and was selected as premier exhibitor of Thursday's Holstein show.

The Kerrs are frequent exhibitors at the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show and have made this show their first stop on the 1995 dairy circuit. They are longtime Holstein breeders, presently concentrating on developing a good herd for the show ring.

The junior champion female of the show was a spring heifer, Cameron-Ridger Slim Melody, exhibited by Heff Haven Holsteins of Jefferson, Maryland. The reserve junior champion was a fall yearling heifer, Don-Ton Chaos Beauty, exhibited by Campbell Run Farm of Ford City, Armstrong County, Pennsylvania.

The reserve champion bull, Miller Farm Mr Pete B, a junior bull calf, was exhibited by David Miller of Greensburg, Westmoreland County. The premier breeder of the show was Penn Gate Farm of Littlestown, Adams County.

(Turn to Page A29)

In the Eastern National Holstein Show, the premier exhibitor was Pamtom Farm, Hudson Falls, N.Y. The grand champion female was also shown by Pamtom Farm.

In the Ayrshire Show, premier breeder and premier exhibitor awards both went to Doug Evans of Sunny Acres, Georgetown, N. Y. Also shown is Cameron McGregor, leadman.

The Milking Shorthorn show premier breeder award went to Wendy Yoder, Pinesedge Farm, Batavia, N.Y. The premier exhibitor award went to John Paul Kuszlyk, II, Kuszlyk Cattle Co. Batavia, N.Y. Kuszlyk also showed the grand champion female.

In the Mid-Atlantic Regional Jersey Show, both premier breeder and premier exhibitor awards went to Spring Valley Farm, Westminster, Md. Shown from left, Betty Heath, Wayne Stiles, and Mike Heath.

Eastern National Brown Swiss Show state herd winner was Maryland by the Maryland Brown Swiss Association, Hollywood, Md.