Open House Sept. 21 At New Bolton

KENNETT SQUARE (Chester Co.) — New Bolton Center, the rural campus and large animal facility of the University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary Medicine, will host an open house on Sept. 21 to feature the large animal hospital and the small animal hospital.

Various exhibits which reflect the school's commitment to teaching, research, and clinical care will be on display for the occasion. The public is invited to view the George D. Widener Hospital for large animals with its surgical suites, pool recovery, ultrasound, scintigraphy, neonatal intensive care, and intensive care units for large animals. The small animal hospital will be represented by the Bloodmobile and emergency service and intensive care unit exhibits.

New this year and of special interest to children will be a "Stuffed Animal ★M★A★S★H★ Tent." Young ones may bring their tattered, torn, one-eyed stuffed animal friends to this tent where a student surgical team work hard to restore the beloved stuffed pal to its original healthy looks. The tent will stimulate a real surgery and personnel will explain the procedures and treatments.

In addition, several demonstrations will highlight the day:

- "Stop, Paws and Run K-9's" (S.P.A.R.K.S.) dog "agility" demonstration sponsored by the Dog Training Club of Chester County where dogs go over, under, and around obstacles racing against the clock.

- Large animal display illustrating the different types and breeds of engines, large and small ruminants, and farm birds.

- An exhibit featuring different breeds of cattle organized by The Southeastern Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association.

- Homestead Llamas of Davidsonville, Md. with eight of their llamas so the public can test their abilities on a llama obstacle course. The course will include barriers and jumps similar to what you would encounter backpacking with a llama.
- A working dog from The Delaware State Police Canine Unit.

- Dogs that make a disabled person's life more independent demonstrated by Canine Partners For Life of Cochranville, PA.

- IAMS Canine Puissance features jumping competitions in three all-breed categories (small, medium, and large). Contestants are the reigning champions from IAMS Canine Puissance held at Winterthur's Point-to-Point and the Pennsylvania Hunt Cup.

- Rex and Rudy, two Durham oxen owned by Dr. Barbara Corson, illustrating the power and strength needed by early settlers to explore and utilize the land.

- The Jeffords Treadmill exhibition demonstrates how veterinarians in the Sports Medicine Section of the Widener Hospital use the high-speed treadmill to diagnose performance problems in equine patients (and, yes we are putting real horses on the treadmill for the public to watch).

- Back by popular demand at the New Bolton Center Open House is the six horse draft team from Rovenolt Stables, Turbotville, for an exhibition of hitching up and driving. The six-horse hitch consists of six black Percheron geldings ranging in height from 17 to 18 hands high (5 feet 8 inches to 6 feet tall measuring from the ground to their withers, the area at the base of the neck) each weighing more than 2,000 pounds. This hitch is owned and operated by Alfred and Donna Rovenolt of Turbotville, who have won the team hitch class for the last three years at The Pennsylvania Farm

Show and first prize for the "Commercial Class" at the Devon Horse Show this past May.

The Open House is free and open to the public. Open House is the only time during the year when the center and hospital are open to visitors. New Bolton Center is located in the rolling hills of Chester County on Route 926 near Kennett Square.

Broken Arrow Ranch Joins Association

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Broken Arrow Ranch, Holtwood, Pa. is a new member of the American Angus Association, reported Dick Spader, executive vice president of the national organization.

The American Angus Association, with more than 29,000 active adult and junior members, is the largest beef cattle registry association in the world. Its computerized records include detailed information on over 12 million registered Angus.

The Association records ancestral information and keeps records of production on individual animals for its members. These permanent records help members select and mate the best animals in their herds to produce high quality, efficient breeding cattle which are then recorded with the American Angus Association. Most of these registered Angus are used by the U.S. farmers and ranchers who raise high quality beef for U.S. consumption.
