

780 Animals Exhibited At State Youth Dairy Shows

(Continued from Page A19)

possible inclusion in the following day's state Holstein Fall Championship Show.

It was done for all breeds, since showing adults first allows the owners to have their milk-bearing animals milked out and relieved of that discomfort. Otherwise, the adult animals have to wait until the end of the show to get milked out, and with youth dairy shows, there is typically a much stronger representation among the younger ages of cattle. This is because it takes several years to raise a number of milk-bearing cattle, which generally requires that the youth have to be older to have raised that many cattle of milking age.

The type judge of the Holstein show was Fowler Branstetter, of Edmonton, Ky., while Tom Arrowsmith, of Peach Bottom, served as showmanship judge.

Norman Hill, of Woodbine, Md., served as type judge of the Milking Shorthorn, Guernsey, and Brown Swiss shows. John Foster II, of Petersburg, was showmanship judge.

Alta Mac Core, of Salvisa, Ky., served as type judge for the Ayrshire and Jersey shows, while Cathy Pavelski, of Susquehanna, served as showmanship judge for those shows.

Ayrshire

In the state youth Ayrshire show, Daryl Maulfair, of Jones-town, showed the grand champion, a junior 2-year-old, Maulfair Acres Festival D.J. It was also the best bred and owned of the show.

The reserve senior and reserve grand champion of the show was a 4-year-old, Bonniesshade JJ Clover, owned by Brian Sharer, of Bradford.

Kyle Lester, of Montrose, showed the junior champion, a fall calf, Sunny-Acres Moon Gem. The reserve junior champion Ayrshire was Redshale Ridge Heli GoGo, shown by Trisha McIlwain, of Canton.

Best bred and owned Ayrshire was a spring yearling, Deamnol Trident's Snow, owned by Kevin Nolan, of Pottstown.

Brown Swiss

Joy Hess, of Gettysburg, showed the grand champion and senior champion Brown Swiss, Gemstone Sarah, a 4-year-old.

Joshua Hushon, of Delta, showed the reserve grand and reserve senior Brown Swiss, Lake Lane Pebbles, as well as the junior champion, a winter calf Old Mill Jetway Fancy.

Hushon also showed the best bred and owned animal of the show, a senior 2-year-old, Brothers Three Nutty Buddy.

The reserve junior champion Brown Swiss was a summer yearling, Bo Ka Dotson Myrah, owned and bred by Jason Butler, of Middlebury Center.

Guernsey

In the Guernsey show, Aaron Gable of New Enterprise, showed the grand champion and senior champion, a 4-year-old, Sniders Fayette I Century.

Paul Guyer, of Derry, showed the reserve senior and reserve grand champion Guernsey, a dry cow, Hi Field Zeus Jessie.

The junior champion was a winter calf, Twin Brook Magic Georgie, shown by Anne Marchezak, of Bentleyville.

Jan Snider, of New Enterprise, showed the reserve junior champion, Sniders Illus Rosette.

Holstein

In the Holstein show, Maggie Moore, of Mercer, showed the grand and senior champion, 5-year-old Amoore Algonquin Maddy Jo.

Ronald Hough Jr., of Rebersburg, showed the reserve senior and reserve grand champion, C Kallanda Astro Jet Lary.

The junior champion was a fall yearling, Cha-Do Stardust Twinkle-TW, shown by Trisha McIlwain, of Canton.

The reserve junior champion was a fall calf owned by Justin James Burdette, of Mercersburg, Windy-Knoll View JJB Pizow.

From the left, Curtis Reichard holds the halter of his reserve junior champion Jersey of the state youth dairy show, while Aaron Horst shows his junior champion.

From the left, Maggie Moore holds the halter of her senior and grand champion Holstein of the state Youth Dairy Show, while Ronald Hough holds the halter of his reserve senior and reserve grand champion.

From the left, Trisha McIlwain holds the halter of her junior champion Holstein of the state youth dairy show, while James Justin Burdette shows the reserve junior champion.

From the left, Trisha McIlwain shows her reserve junior champion Ayrshire of the state youth dairy show, while Kylie Lester shows her junior champion.

From the left, Jan Snider shows the reserve junior champion Guernsey of the state youth dairy show, while Anne Marchezak shows the junior champion.

From the left, Daryl Maulfair holds the halter of his grand champion Ayrshire of the state Youth Dairy Show and receives a large trophy for having his animal named the best bred and owned of the show.

Look for more

All-American stories

and photographs

next week