ANSWER — Cindy Eshleman asks for a source of unusual trees or seeds, such as a Chinese tallow tree. Thanks to Anne Van Atter, Woodbine, Md., for writing that two strains of the trees are available for $4.95 and $5.95 from Forest Farm, 99 Tetherow Rd., Williams, OR 97544-9599 or phone (541) 846-7269. A 428-page catalog lists trees, shrubs, and woody plants available and costs $4.

However seeds are not listed in the catalog. According to "Manual of Woody Landscape Plants," by Michael Dirr, the seeds are easy grow. The tallow tree seems to have become almost pestiferous in the coastal plains from South Carolina to Florida and Louisiana. Trees may be injured if the temperature drops below 0 degrees F.

Atler writes that Cindy may be interested in Evodice danielle, called bee tree, which blooms about four weeks from the middle of July to the middle of August in northern Maryland. It is covered with honey bees from sun-up until sundown even during lightly falling rain.

ANSWER — Sally McGrath sends in an answer for a question that wasn't asked because whenever someone needs the answer to this question, they won't want to wait two weeks or longer for an answer. She found out the hard way that this solution works if pets are sprayed by skunks.

Krebaum's Home Skunk Remedy

Put on goggles or other eye protection. In a bucket, mix:
1 quart (0.95 L) of 3% hydrogen peroxide, H₂O₂
¼ cup (60 mL) baking soda (sodium bicarbonate), NaHCO₃.

1 teaspoon (5 mL) of liquid dishwashing detergent
Stir the ingredients briefly. The solution will fizz as the hydrogen peroxide decomposes and releases bubbles of oxygen.

Have a friend hold the smelly pet in a washtub while you scrub it with a soft brush. Rinse the pet with tap water. You may need to repeat the treatment on your friend.
