

Club Holds Fall Classic

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent
MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — A Boutonniere daughter selling to James Bowman, New Enterprise, for $2,450 topped the numbers at the Fall Classic that the Somerset County Holstein Club held Aug. 28.

Calday Bout Showie, born Dec. 1, 1992, was consigned by True-

Vine Holsteins in care of Philip Dayton, Ridgely, W. Va.

Mishlin Encore Dracula, born on Oct. 26, 1993 and consigned by Mark and Helen Mishler, Hollsople, was purchased for $2,000 by Rico Sidone of Boswell, as the second highest selling consignment.

The sale total amounted to $65,575 for the 55 lots, Vera Yoder, statistician, said.

Nolan and Doretta Druist from Chambersburg and Emerald Fields Farms, Rockwood, were unwitting competitors for the premier buyer honors.

Druists peeled out the most money — $10,425 — for the six head they bought, while Emerald owners, Dave and Dianna Harris, divested their accounts of some $9,375 to take home seven head of good Holstein stock from the event.

The sale of three embryos in one lot at $400 each brought $1,200 for Hillmont Farms and Ron Kling, Berlin.

A baby calf barely 12 hours old went for $300, Yoder said.

After she tallied the averages, Yoder said the 23 milking cows averaged $1,568.45. Bred heifers averaged $1,257.81 for 16 head.

Calves under six months averaged $808.03 and those between six and thirteen months, or breeding age, averaged $908.33, she said.

Jill Fox, the wife of John Fox who co-chaired the event with Scott Foreman, said she was nominated to organize the decorations and spruce up the sale barn with mums, bows and a few frills.

Jill's mother, Sally Love, Somerset, agreed to handcraft a beautiful wreath which two area veterinarians bid to the hundred dollar mark, before the one from Grantsville, Md. got it.

"We ought to get a Holstein cow involved in this wreath," Jill told her mother beforehand.

With a bit of ingenuity, they did indeed bind the miniature bovine to the array of silk flowers and leaves attached to a grapevine.

Auctioneer Clark Yoder teamed up with Oren Bender on pedigrees to conduct the sale.

Larry Lohr and Rick Foreman kept things under control in the ring itself.

Chicken barbecue dinners, hot dogs, pie, and other goodies were sold by the Somerset County Junior Holstein Club to raise their financial balances.
