serving as the industry's ambassador.

Newly appointed president of the association John Matillio said that the Association is pleased with the positive image Kendra presents. As an FFA student, Kendra excels in public speaking. In fact, she has won at local, regional, and state levels, which makes her eligible to compete at the national level during the upcoming National FFA Convention to be held in Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 12-16.

Sec. of Agriculture Samuel

Hayes Jr. presented a $1,500 check from the Pa. Dept. of Ag under the matching grant program. The money is for an exhibit booth to be used at fairs and other promotional events.

"This wouldn't happen without the your local lawmakers' support," Hayes said of the matching grant.

In addition to Matillio as president, board officers include Tom Fox, vice president; Andy Bradford, secretary, and Andy Long, treasurer.

Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes, left, presents a matching funds check of $1,500 for poultry promotion to Don Brubaker, outgoing president.

"It's a pleasure to serve in a leadership role of such a fine industry," said John Matillio, left, president of the Lancaster County Poultry Association. He pledged that the board would work to make the good better. With him are Tom Fox, vice president; Andy Bradford, secretary; and Andy Long, treasurer.
