Apple Industry Rewards Retailers

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) Produce manager's displays have been selected as the top fall apple displays in the 1997 Pennsylvania Apples retail display contest held in celebration of National Apple Month. Fourteen managers vied for $2,600 in cash prizes. Each first-place winner receives $500 in prize money for his/her creative efforts.

York Society 26

President Athena Beshore was hostess to York County Farm Women #26 at her home in January.

14 members attended this meeting and Janet Lahr was a visitor.

A report was given on the Christmas banquet that was held at Normandie Ridge at York.

The by-laws were read by the group and reports on the State Convention were given by the delegates attending the convention.

Birthdays for the month of January were Mary Conley and Luna Kohler.

The winning displays were selected from entries submitted from more than 14 supermarket chains and wholesalers based in Pennsylvania and New York. These retailers represent more than 1,400 supermarkets in the mid-Atlantic Region. Produce managers built creative displays in their stores that featured Pennsylvania's Eastern Select apples and apple products.

Judging criteria focus heavily on volume and variety of fresh apples displayed; all first-place winners displayed a minimum of six varieties of apples. Winning displays also earned points for creativity, shopability, and cross merchandising.

Contest entries were judged by geographic location of the supermarket. First-place winners included: in the Eastern Region: Giant Food Store #59, Mechanicsburg; Western Region: Kittanning Foodland, Kittanning.

This annual contest boosts sales, builds enthusiasm, and provides a partnership between the apple industry and retail produce managers," said Brenda Beleski Briggs, director of the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Program. "The 1997 entries showed that the produce managers put a tremendous amount of effort into building impressive and effective displays. Winning produce managers reported that sales of fresh apples increased by as much as 17 percent."

Food Safety Workshop

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) - Volunteers at banquets, community festivals or church suppers often just rely on the cooking skills they use at home to prepare food for several hundred people. Professional chefs knwo the secrets for safely cooking toods in large quantities. Now non-professionals can know them too.

A Penn State workshop for occasional quantity cooks, the people who occasionally volunter at events where food is cooked or served to a crowd, is available for your organization. Nancy Wiker, extension agent with Penn State Cooperative Extension and certified master food handler, will train your group of 10 or more in safe food handling techniques.

Foodborne illness strikes Americans more than 12 million times each year. More than three quarters of the outbreaks are blamed on food eaten outside the home. While such illnesses can be as mild as a stomachache, it can be more serious and sometimes fatal. Children and the elderly are among those who are most at risk.

Penn State encourages persons with disabilities to participate in its programs and activities. If you anticipate needing any type of accommodation or have questions about the physical access provided, please contact office our (717-394-6851) in advance of your participation or visit.

The next scheduled workshop at the Farm and Home Center is on Tuesday, February 17, from 6-9 p.m. The cost is $5 per person. Additional workshops may be requested for a group of 10 or more at your site. Call Nancy Wiker, Penn State Cooperative Extension at (717) 394-6851 for information.
