tures, in addition to the candies, Lancaster County ice cream, sundaes, banana splits, milk shakes, and other goodies. Next to it is Fisher's Candies and Fisher's Homemade Soft Pretzels.

The stand is owned by Levi Fisher of Gap. Visitors could get a glimpse of Ruth Stoltzfus working dough into pretzels at one of the stands.

Near the Beer Garden, at the rear center of the market, is Halleman Family Foods, owned by Amos Riehl, Intercourse. The stand has been in existence at the terminal market about 50 years, according to Riehl. It offers meats and vegetables every day, Monday through Saturday.

Jolene King was busy working the Dutch Kountry Sandwich Korner stand from Gordonville. The stand is operated by David and Barbara Esh. It has been operated for 18 years and is open from Wednesday through Saturday all year long.

Barbara noted that "Saturday is the busiest day" for the stand, though Friday can also be a challenge.

"These are the nicest people I know," commented one customer of the stand. The Philadelphia businessman, who wished to remain anonymous, said, "It's like being at home — it's a real pleasant experience."

The Rib Stand, which features baby back ribs, rib sandwiches, and barbecue potatoes, makes its home in Intercourse. Phares Glick, owner of stand, has been selling pork products at the stand for 15 years. The stand is open Wednesday through Saturday all year.

Glick's Salads, Gordonville, has been operating at the terminal market for 16 years. Salads are sold Wednesday through Saturday all year long. Operating the stand recently was Michelle Fetter.
