ANSWER — Mrs. Norman Burkholder, Denver, sent this recipe for making soap in an iron kettle, which had been requested by Leona Leiby from Kutztown.

Homemade Soap

16 pounds raw fat
3 pounds caustic soda
7½ gallons water
2 pints salt

Dissolve caustic soda in cold water (use only containers such as crocks and stone jars). Put water and fat in the iron kettle. Start fire. Add half of the caustic soda solution, cook until fat is dissolved. Add 2 pints salt. Add remainder of solution when fat is dissolved. Keep fire hot, but not too hot. Be prepared with a bucket of water if mixture begins to rise to high. Let cool overnight or until soap is hard. Cut into blocks.

For an unknown reason premelted lard will not turn out nice soap with this cooking method.
