

State Farm-City Event

belted out a repertoire of country hits as well as other currently popular songs such as the theme to the movie "Titanic."

In between sets, she signed numerous autographs.

Two mounted state police were on hand, talking to children and adults about their horses and for what and how they are used.

Three rows of tables were set up in the lot where PDA employees distributed the 3,000 packets of agricultural information they put together to give to the students.

This young lady admires her handiwork in painting a Halloween pumpkin, as part of an art activity about agricultural products and traditional festivities. In the background, a couple of PDA employees dressed in white lab coats help the youth with their painting.

At a booth of the Pennsylvania Nut Growers Association, these children, several clutching apples, look at the variety of nuts that can and are grown in the state. The nut meats and several nut crackers were on display as well.

Other employees volunteered to wear costumes of Hershey's candy characters and roaming the grounds with another volunteer escort, making sure the costume wearer didn't fall.

The costume wearers received lots of hugs and smiles.

The Elizabethtown Area High

School band played songs, that some of the children began to spontaneously dance to while waiting in line for a ride on an apple, or while watching Deputy Secretary Chris Herr shear sheep, or painting a Halloween decoration.

A radio station was on hand to continue providing music in the absence of Crystal Marie or the school band performing.

For hours the grounds were filled with hundreds to thousands of kids, until winding down in the afternoon.
