Protecting Your Milk Price With BFP Options

Would you like to establish a floor price under the milk you sell? Well, the Dairy Options Pilot Program (DOPP) may provide you the opportunity to learn how to do that.

DOPP is designed to help dairy farmers learn how to use BFP options as a tool to manage milk price volatility. Using BFP options, you establish a floor BFP price, however, you still benefit if BFP prices rise. There are no margin calls, only a one time fee when you buy the option. The meetings listed below have been scheduled by Penn State Cooperative Extension of Chester and Lancaster Counties to discuss the basics of dairy options, to explain the Dairy Options Pilot Program initiated by USDA, and to help answer producer questions regarding options or the Pilot program.
