

Annual Pa. Corn, Soybean Conference Jan. 15

ALLENTOWN (Lehigh Co.) — The annual Pennsylvania Corn and Soybean Conference is scheduled Friday, Jan. 15 here at the Days Inn Conference Center. This year's program features speakers from across the country.

Craig Hubner and Kyle Payne from United Ag Products will discuss their project, entitled "M-Power: What Precision Ag Experience is Teaching Us About Crop Production." Dave Whitaker, manager of Pioneer Hybrid International, will present information on "New Developments on the Horizon in Corn and Soybean Production."

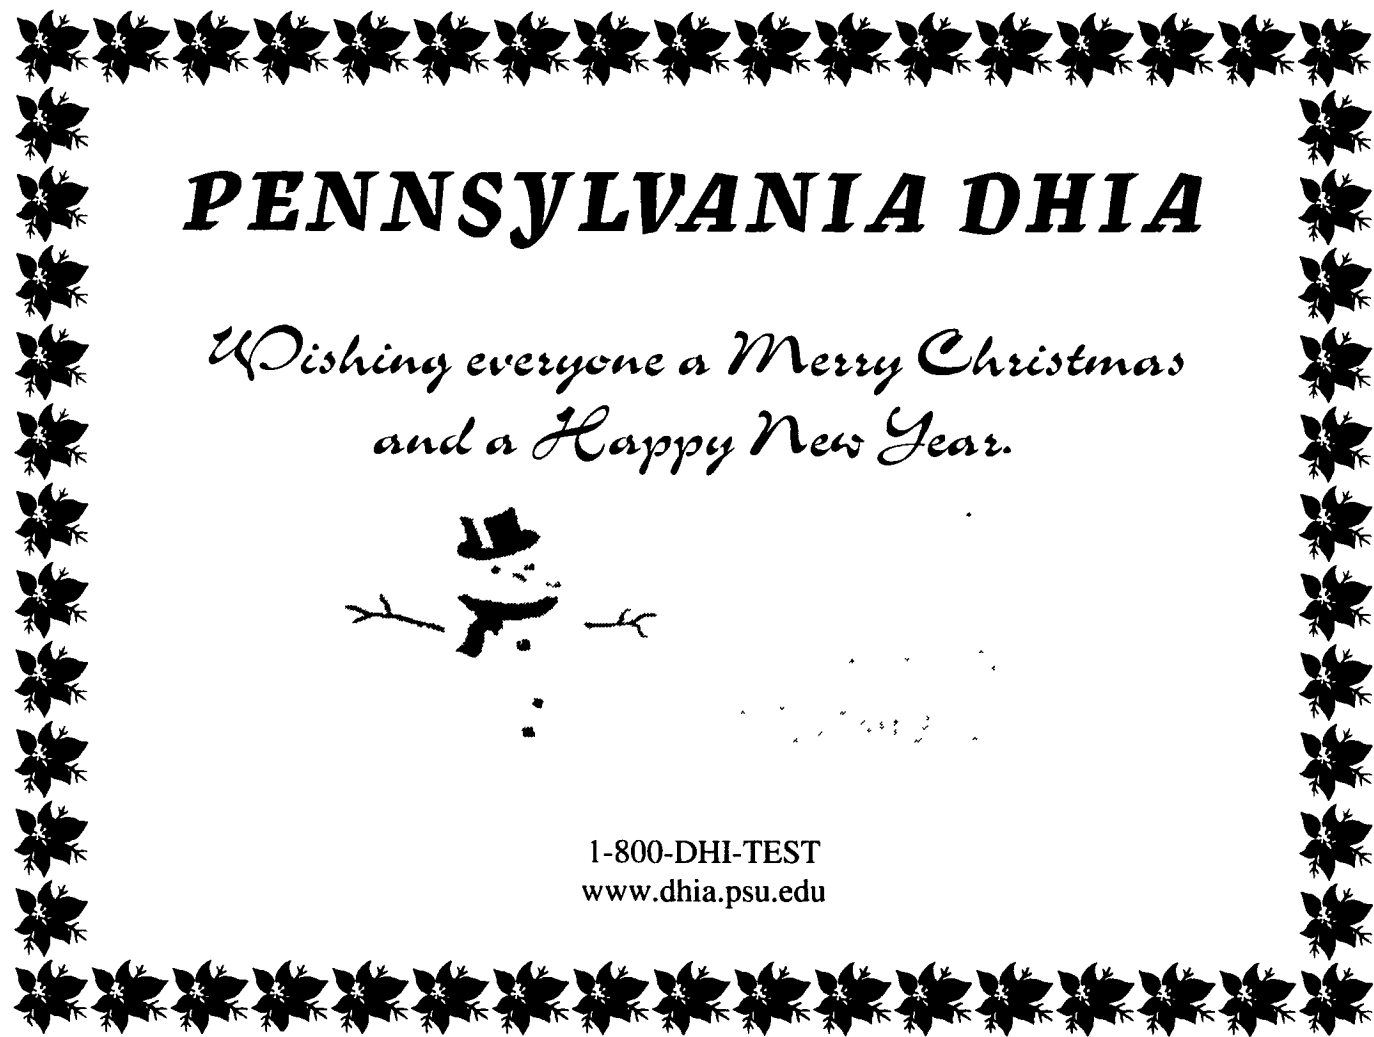

Additional speakers include John Yocum, PSU Landisville research manager, and Greg Roth, PSU agronomy specialist, who will be discussing "10 Things Farms Can Do Today To Increase Profit."

Chris Smith of the Natural Resource and Conservation Service will be providing information on soil health. Dennis Phelps, member of the executive committee of the United Soybean Board, will provide an update on the soybean industry.

Pat Boorva, Smith Barney marketing specialist, will take a look into the future with his presentation on "Marketing: Will I Be Farming in 2005?"

The conference will also include a trade show, 5-Acre Corn Club and Soybean yield contest awards, and reports from the Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers and Pennsylvania Soybean Board. Pesticide update credits will be available.

Cost of the conference is $20, which includes refreshments, lunch, and hand-out materials. To register, contact the Penn State Agronomy Department or your local extension office.
