Martin Tour, Reunion Oct. 23

NEW HOLLAND -- Descendants of the Mennonite Martins who settled in Lancaster County in the early 1700s are organizing for the first time a tour of sites of significance to early Martin history followed by a Martin family reunion supper. All descendants of these Martins and others interested in the pioneering settlers in this area are invited.

Check the phonebook for Lancaster and the northeast part of the county. Martins easily outnumber the Millers, Weavers, Zimmermans and Smiths. Most of the Martins are descended from Christian and Ells Martin and their sons David, Henry, Jacob and Christian who arrived in the New World from Switzerland and Germany between 1722 and 1732 seeking good land for farming and religious freedom.

in the Weaverland Valley is the burial place of the earliest Martins, and will be part of the tour during the Martin Reunion.

To research their history and document their descendants, Darvin Martin of Lancaster and Raymond Martin of Northern Virginia had launched The Martin Family History and Genealogy Project last year. Their computerized database already contains 19,000 names. They expect to surpass 100,000 names as Martin descendants find out about the project and contribute their part of the family genealogy. You can find some of these names, plus stories about the family ancestors, on the Internet at www.martin.sim-

To promote understanding and appreciation of the extraordinary pioneering spirit of these early settlers and the religious faith that motivated and sustained them, the two Martins are planning an all-day series of events on Saturday, October 23. The general public as well as Martin descendants are welcome to register for any or all of these activities.

Seminar: The Lancaster Mennonite Historical Society is sponsoring a seminar from 9 a.m. to noon where Darvin and Raymond will present findings on European Martin origins, Lancaster County settlement, and migration outward. Stories of their early life and faith will be recounted. Darvin will discuss his recent article in Pennsylvania Mennonite Heritage which challenges some traditions about Martin history. Gaps in information and future directions of the project will be reviewed.

Tour: the bus tour will eave from Weaverland (brick) Mennonite Church parking lot at 2 p.m. It will include the site of the original David Martin homestead as well as the home sites of Henry and Christian Martin and the early Weber settlers. The outline of David's 370acre farm will be traced Homes of other prominent Martins, as well as several cemeteries, including the original Weber/ Martin family cemetery will be

Reunion Supper: following the tour, at 5:30 p.m., there will be a simple Martin reunion supper in the Weaverland Mennonite Church basement. At 7 p.m. a 51-minute video describing the history

Weaverland Mennonite Church will be shown. Martins figure prominently in this church his-
