

Holstein Hall-Of-Famers

Jefferson Yoder of Mifflin County was honored as a 1999 Hall of Fame inductee during this year's banquet. Since he couldn't attend last year's convention, Yoder and his wife Reba accepted the award this year in a farming accident just days before the classification. Miller decided to classify anyway because he felt his dad would have wanted it that way, and the herd ended up with four Very Goods and the rest all scoring 80 points and above.

In 1967, Miller held the first Great-View dispersal sale to purchase the farm from his mother. He kept the yearlings and calves for his next herd and began milking again in 1968.

The first Excellent came to Great-View when Miller purchased a 3-year-old Don Auger Promise Lad daughter from Paul and Clarence Lytle in Middletown. On her second classification at Great-View, she went Excellent.

The first Excellent cow bred at Great-View was a calf held off from the 1967 dispersal. Great-

(Turn to Page A24)

The editors of four farm publications were honored for their work in support of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association at their annual meeting last week in Carlisle. They are: Everett Newswanger, editor of Lancaster Farming; Robert McKowen, editor of Holstein Pennsylvania Holstein News and Holstein World; Renee Bates, editor of Pennsylvania Holstein Profiles; and Dieter Krieg, editor of Farmshine. In the photo, Newswanger, left, receives his award from James Burdette, association president.

Dieter Krieg Farmshine

Robert McKowen Holstein World

Renee Bates PA Holstein Profiles

played piano.

On April 10, they'll celebrate their 45th wedding anniversary. They have three children, Deb, Jeff, and Mike.

In 1956, Harrison sold the farm where Miller grew up and helped him purchase the Great-View Farm in Fishing Creek Valley where Miller's legacy of great cattle began.

In 1962, Miller talked his dad into classifying their herd. Unfortunately Harrison was killed

Roundup

They go together
just like bacon and eggs.

DUPONT

Classic
herbicide