

Off Policy Execution

balls, maple syrup, pancakes, corn chowder, and veal from commodity organizations from around the state. Tuesday's events began early with a breakfast, then members set out to meet with legislators and staff to discuss the organization's priorities for the year 2000.

Members gathered again for lunch to hear the keynote speaker, Sen. Nancy Lorraine Hoffmann (R-Syracuse). A farmer herself, Hoffmann displayed her knowledge of and concern for life in rural New York. The senator outlined legislation on agricultural labor and the importance of working together to educate lawmakers and the media alike on New York's agricultural industry.

"Farmers in New York are lucky to have Senator Hoffman as chair of the Senate Agriculture Committee," said Lincoln. "She has continually shown her commitment to those issues which farmers hold dear."

These events mark the beginning of New York Farm Bureau policy execution year. Farm Bureau members will soon lobby Congressional delegates in Washington, D.C. New York Farm Bureau members conduct these types of events on an ongoing basis, which further supports the organization's grassroots efforts.
