WHTNEYVILLE (Tioga Co.)
 — Olivia Courtney's EsBern Blackstar Elsie Sis took the highest honors at the Tioga County open dairy shows, conducted here Friday and Saturday, Aug. 11-12.

The 4-year-old grand champion Holstein trumped the other breed champions to take home the supreme champion title. This is the second time in the four years the award has been presented that Courtney's Blackstar topped the list of entries. She previously won the distinction in 1998. EsBern Farms also was named the premier breeder and premier exhibitor of the show.

Joe Vanderfeltz, Rushville, judged the two-day show. On Friday, the Holsteins, Linebacks, and Red and Whites filled the ring.

The reserve grand champion of the Holstein show, EsBern Jed Allie Manni, also hailed from EsBern Farm and the 4-year-old class.

Named the junior champion Holstein was Kahler Farms' fall calf, Portage Rudolph Delite. The reserve junior champion was Duane Andrews' summer yearling, D Andrews Highlight Greta.

In the Red and White show, Vermillion Holsteins exhibited the junior champion, grand champion, and reserve grand champion of the day. Winter calf Vermillion Salic Tara-Red was named the junior champion, junior 2-year-old Vermillion Sly Peaches-Red was named the senior and grand champion, and Vermillion Concord Marilyn-Red, an aged cow, was named the reserve senior and reserve grand champion.

Christopher Jackson showed the reserve junior champion, Thomas-Crest Tapanga-Red.
