Vol. 45 No. 49

Four Sections

Lancaster Farming, Saturday, October 7, 2000

$32.00 Per Year

60¢ Per Copy

Retired farmer and historian Arthur Reist sits in front of the newlypainted historical mural of a Conestoga wagon and team of Belgian horses. Reist has enjoyed educating the public about the painting, which is not only historically accurate but also a memorial to his ancestor, Jacob Reist. The mural is the work of Wayne Fettro of Elizabethtown. See story page A36. Photo by Michelle Ranck Butch Clemens' photo will accompany other past honorees on the wall in the Small Arena of the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg. Criteria used in choosing the Hall of Fame Winner includes contribution to the livestock industry, involvement with the association, and contribution to the community. An honoree is chosen each year at the beginning of KILE. See additional coverage of KILE in next week's issue of Lancaster Farming.

KILE Announces 2000 Hall Of Fame Winner

Clair "Butch" Clemens, retired CEO of Hatfield Quality Meats, Hatfield, was honored as the 2000 Hall of Fame winner.

meats, matneid, was nonored here as the 2000 Hall of Fame Winner for the Pennsylvania Livestock Association during opening ceremonies Thursday at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE) at the Farm Show Complex.

His picture will be hung with the previous winners of this prestigious award on the back wall of the Small Arena at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

Criteria used in choosing the Hall of Fame Winner includes contribution to the livestock industry, involvement with the association, and contribution to the community.

Clemens was born and raised in Montgomery County, Pennsylvania, and was active in his family's company, Hatfield HARRISBURG (Dauphin retired CEO of Hatfield Quality Quality Meats, since 1946. He performed just about every job from cleaning hog pens and trucks to holding the position of president and CEO.

Clemens retired from Hatfield Quality Meats in July 1995. During his tenure as president and CEO of Hatfield, Clemens was instrumental in the expansion and modernization of the fresh pork operations, which included the building of a new cut floor and fresh pork boning

Clemens poised the company for growth by ensuring that modern equipment was in place to meet the challenges of the day-to-day operations and meet the projected demands of sales and marketing. During his tenure as president, Hatfield also purchased numerous acqui-

(Turn to Page A11)