Tomb Of A King

In November 1922, two British archaeologists found what was to become a very famous tomb. Howard Carter and Lord Carnarvon found the tomb of Tutankhamun, also known as King Tut.

King Tut, who lived during the 1300s B.C., was only about 9 when he became pharaoh or ruler of Egypt. However, he didn't remain in power long because he died when he was 18 or 19. People who have studied the time and Tut's life believe he was murdered.

Even though he was so young, Tut is the most famous of all Egyptian rulers, and that's probably because of his tomb. Tut's tomb included the antechamber, burial chamber, and the treasury.

The antechamber was the room outside the burial chamber where Tut's mummy was found. Chariots, food, couches, and thrones were all found in the antechamber, along with two figures that guarded the door of the burial chamber.

The coffin, which is about 6 feet long and 2 feet wide, was made of solid gold. Tut's burial mask, which he was wearing, was gold and had beautiful stones and colored glass in its design.

The treasury room was next to the burial chamber. It contained treasures for what the Egyptians believed would be Tut's life after his death. Along with boats, the treasury included gold figures of goddesses.

Head In The Sand?

Found only in certain parts of Africa, ostriches are the largest birds in the world. They can grow to be 8 to 10 feet tall, and some of them weigh up to 400 pounds.

The small, flat heads and long necks of the ostriches are covered with down, or very fine, small feathers, while their bodies are covered with soft feathers. Female and young male ostriches are grayish brown. The body feathers of the grown males are glossy black, and the wings and tail feathers are white.

Even though they can't fly, ostriches can move very fast. Their powerful legs help them hit speeds of about 40 miles an hour. And their legs are so strong, they are able to kill with one kick.

Ostriches live in the desert, where they get water from plants they eat. Even though many pictures show them with their heads in the sand, ostriches don't really do that.

Male ostriches mate with several females, and all the females lay their eggs in one nest they make by scooping an area out of the ground. The nests usually have 30 to 50 of the largest eggs in the world, which are 6 to 9 inches long and weigh from 3 to 5 pounds.
