

Top Corn, Soybean Growers San Antonio Bound In 2001

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Thousands of corn and soybean growers will soon converge on San Antonio, Texas, for the 2001 Commodity Classic, Feb. 25-27.

Located on San Antonio's famous Riverwalk, the Henry B. Gonzalez Convention Center will host the combined convention and trade show of the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) and the American Soybean Association (ASA).

"Commodity Classic organizers have once again put together a first-class event bringing together the nation's top corn and soybean growers," said NCGA President Lee Klein. "This is a true opportunity for growers to improve their profitability."

Commodity Classic is the premier venue for growers to learn and network with leading innovators in crop production and agri-business industry representatives to improve their efficiency and profitability. The 2001 Classic agenda includes a diverse range of production, education, new product seminars and top entertainment events.

"Commodity Classic helps keep producers on the cutting edge of new technology," said ASA President Tony Anderson. "It is an event that every grower can learn and benefit from by putting the information to practical and profitable use."

Headlining this 2001 Commodity Classic evening of entertainment is the award-winning Oak Ridge Boys, one of America's best-known country acts. Educational session topics include Variable Rate Application With Remote Sensing, Sprayer Nozzle Research and Grower Spraying Accuracy, Zone Tillage and Residue Management Equipment, Environmental Regulations That Will Make Growers Change Practices, Future of the Farm Bill, Grain Utilization and Export Outlook, Making a Family Farm a Family Business, and Marketing Grain on Your Own or Farming the LDP.

Complete registration and reservation information is available by calling (636) 928-3700. Watch for the official Commodity Classic Website: www.commodityclassic.com.
