MONTROSE (Susquehanna Co.) — Holstein enthusiasts will have their pick of over 60 consignments at the Northeast Spring Classic sale, sponsored by the Susquehanna County Holstein Club April 5 at 7:30 p.m. Harold Hartt's farm, Susquehanna, will host the event. Fraley Auction Company, Muncy will auctioncer.

Consignments were handpicked by dairy farmers for dairy farmers and exemplify the best the Northeast has to offer. They include milking cows, springers, show-age calves, an embryo package, and a pick of flush. In the past, buyers have enjoyed customer-satisfaction cattle and have returned year after year. This sale has been a tradition in the Northeast for more than 35 years.

One unique consignment to the sale is three units of 29HO2775 Hanover-Hill Triple Threat semen, consigned by Charlie Clark, Springville. Triple Threat, born in 1972, has sired numerous All-American and All-Canadian cattle.

To request a catalog, contact sale chair Joe Vanderfeltz (570) 934-2406; or sale committee member Charlie Clark, Springville, (570) 996-0743; or Joseph Pavelski, Susquehanna, (570) 756-2256; or any member of the Susquehanna Holstein Club. Other sale information can be found on Fraley Auction Company's Website www.fraleyauction.com.

Holstein Sale Announced | Community, Legislators Discuss Issues

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania State Council of Farm Organizations (SCOFO) hosted its annual business meeting and Cornucopia reception in the state Capitol March 11.

The Cornucopia offers Pennsylvania's agricultural community an opportunity to interact with legislators and discuss the legislative agenda.

"While meeting with state legislators, our members addressed a number of current issues of interest to the organization," said Susan Fox, executive director of the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts Inc. and chairwoman of the 2002 Cornucopia.

The meeting featured a twopart roundtable discussion, with the first part focused on "Local Governments and Agriculture."

Elam Herr of the Pennsylvania Association of Township Supervisors and Jim Kennedy, Butler County Commissioner, served as panelists. The second part of the discussion, "Water Resources," featured panelists David Hess, DEP secretary; George Wolff of George Wolff Associates; Bill Adams of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau and Brenda Shambaugh of the Pennsylvania State Grange.
