

New Holstein And High-Components Sire Directories Available

PLAIN CITY, Ohio — New Holstein and high-components breeds sire directories from Select Sires are available for dairy producers as they update mating programs for their herds. The directories include information from the quarterly sire evaluations calculated by the USDA, InterBull, and the breed associations.

The 40-page, full-color Holstein directory features the latest production and type data for Select Sires' 89 active-A.I. sires, as well as 35 Super Sampler™ bulls whose semen is available through Select's young-sire proving program — the Program for Genetic Advancement™. The details about each active-A.I. sire include his complete proof and an information block that graphically depicts his linear type data. In addition, the directory contains pictures of daughters sired by industry-leading sires.

The 20-page, full-color high-components-breeds directory highlights production and type information for 35 active-A.I. sires and 20 Super Samplers representing the Ayrshire, Brown Swiss, Guernsey, Jersey and Milking Shorthorn breeds. Complete proof details and an information block that graphically depicts linear type data are provided for each high-components sire in Select's active-A.I. lineup.

Producers can contact their Select Sires representative or local cooperative to receive a complimentary Holstein sire directory and/or high-components-breeds sire directory, or send an e-mail request to info-line@selectsires.com.
