

CFS Has New Beginning

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — The CFS organization, consisting of Chambersburg Farm Service and Carlisle Farm Service, began a new era of operation Nov. 1.

CFS was organized by a group of farmers in Franklin County more than 30 years ago. The fundamental principal for founding the business was to assure themselves and fellow farmers that there would be a local dealership to provide quality parts and service for their equipment. Over time, the organization grew to have more than 50 employees and more than 60 shareholders.

Throughout the '70s, '80s, and '90s, CFS did well, achieving local, regional and national recognition for various achievements. However, in October 2001, CFS found itself in a position to seek Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection. Since that time, CFS has operated under the uncertain conditions that "bankruptcy" signifies.

On Oct. 31, the assets of CFS were bought by Carlisle Equipment Inc. Carlisle Equipment Inc. is a partnership of Aaron Hobble, former Carlisle store manager and J. Edward (Ed) Clouse, owner of Clouse Trucking, a milk hauling company.

While CFS has a new owner, it will retain its "CFS" identity. CFS will do business in Chambersburg as Chambersburg Farm Service at its 975 South Main Street location. In Carlisle, it will do business as Carlisle Farm Service at the 260 York Road location.

The CFS product line will include Case-IH, Case skidsteers (including the large XT models), Kuhn-Knight (formerly Knight), Agco tractors, Agco New Idea (both standard and commercial contracts), Agco Glencoe, Great Plains, Hardi, Bush Hog, UMC, BriMar trailers, Diller wagons, Becker Woodchuck buckets, Badger, Massey Ferguson Parts at Carlisle.

One of the most important aspects of a new beginning at CFS is its employees. CFS retained many of its experienced employees through the bankruptcy.
