Poignant Civil War Letter Reveals Heartbreak, Dedication To Duty, Honor

HATFIELD (Montgomery Co.) — On December 12, the Alderfer Auction Company will offer an important collection of letters, books and photographs related to the military career of General George Gordan Meade "The Hero of Gettysburg." In this collection is an interesting and poignant letter from Charles Stone requesting his own execu-

General Charles P. Stone was an officer to whom duty and honor were important. Stone graduated from the bastion of honor, the United States Military Academy at West Point in 1845. Soon after graduation he joined the U.S. forces that were engaged in the war against Mexico. For his bravery in battle, he won two promotions.

In 1861, as the storm clouds of discontent rose on the horizon and pushed our country closer to Civil War, Stone was assigned as Inspector General of Washington DC. In this position, he was responsible for the safety of the Capitol and also incoming President Abraham Lincoln.

As the Civil War began Stone was promoted to General and served his country as a battlefield commander. During the Battle of Ball's Bluff, Edward Baker, an officer serving with Stone, led a foolhardy charge that resulted in numerous casualties including the death of Baker. Baker was also a United States Senator and many politicians called for an investigation into this catastrophe.

Many people blamed Stone in private, and for the press Stone became a scapegoat. Ât midnight on February 8, 1862, military authorities entered Stone's headquarters, arrested him, and moved him to a military prison in New York. Here he was held for 189 days, mostly in solitary confinement, with no charges being filed. When released, Stone was never given a reason for his arrest or intern-

Stone returned to the battlefield serving in several engagements in the deep South. In 1864 Lincoln's Secretary of War relieved Stone of the rank of General. Soon after, in a poignant letter to his commanding officer, General George Meade, Charles Stone requested that he be executed because of the shame he had brought upon himself and Meade refused to have Stone executed and Stone resigned from the Army five days later.

After the Civil War, Stone, an excellent engineer, left the United States and found employment as an important officer in the army of the King of Egypt. He held this position for 13 years until returning to the United States.

One of Stone's final jobs as engineer was the construction of the foundation and base of the Statue of Liberty, which still stands in New York Harbor. Upon his death in 1887, Stone was buried at West Point to rest in peace with other military officers who likewise had served their country

The letter that Stone had penned requesting his own execution is part of the Meade archive that includes other correspondence, photography, books and relics that relate to Philadelphia's own General George G. Meade. Meade commanded the Union Army at Gettysburg and many of the items relate to this important and historic battle.
