CNH Reports Second Quarter 2003 Profit

LAKE FOREST, Ill. — CNH Global N.V. (NYSE:CNH) recently reported net income of $36 million, or $.27 per share, for the second quarter of 2003. Consistent with the company's forecast, CNH's second quarter bottom line, excluding restructuring charges of $20 million, net of tax, was $56 million, compared to $45 million for the second quarter of 2002, before restructuring charges of $6 million, net of tax.

For the first half of 2003, CNH reported a net loss of $10 million, or $.08 per share, including restructuring charges of $26 million, net of tax. Excluding restructuring charges, net of tax, in both years, and excluding the cumulative effect of a change in accounting principle in 2002, CNH recorded a profit of $16 million in the first half of 2003, compared to a loss of $1 million for the same period last year.

"We continue to deliver bottom line results consistent with our plan, confirming our goal to bring CNH into the black for 2003, excluding restructuring charges," Paolo Monferino, CNH president and chief executive officer said. "With our improved balance sheet, CNH is ideally positioned for profitability improvements regardless of market conditions. New, higher margin products on the agricultural side of the business will positively contribute to the bottom line this year and in the future."

Second quarter net sales of agricultural equipment: Net sales of agricultural equipment increased to $1.956 billion for the quarter, compared to $1.778 billion in the second quarter of 2002. Net of favorable currency, revenues were essentially unchanged. During the quarter, CNH under-produced agricultural equipment retail demand by 13 percent and continued its aggressive actions to reduce dealer stocks.

Second quarter 2003 industry unit sales of agricultural equipment in North and Latin America improved significantly compared to the second quarter of 2002. In North America, industry sales improved across all tractor segments with substantial gains in the under 40 horsepower segment, while combine sales were down slightly. In Europe, agricultural equipment industry sales declined slightly across all major product categories.

Retail unit sales of CNH agricultural equipment increased in the quarter, particularly combines, for which sales both in Europe and North America increased year-over-year in spite of the industry decline. For over 40 horsepower tractors, CNH kept pace with the industry in North America and in Western Europe.

Garst Announces 2004 New Corn Hybrids

SLATER, Iowa — There has been an evolution at Garst Seed Company over the past two years. Garst has introduced 60 new corn products, with 12 of these new corn hybrids being added to the product range beginning this summer.

Over the last two years, this group of new products included 46 corn products (77 percent) that carry at least one value added trait. Several of these products are G-STAC or gene stacked — the combination of multiple traits being added to a single product. This group of new products from Garst covers a wide maturity range from 83 to 120 days GRM (General Relative Maturity).

All new corn products are brought to the market under Garst's "best product" strategy. This means that no new product will reach the market if it doesn't offer growers a higher standard of performance over current products. In addition, new products are also developed to provide growers with new solutions to agronomic and management challenges.

"Utilizing our best product strategy ensures that our Garst customers are using hybrids that have been through many stages of research, development, testing, and in-field evaluation trials," said Jeff Sernett, corn product manager for Garst Seed Company. "We are also excited because Garst will soon introduce the YieldGard® Rootworm (YG2) trait for the 2004 planting season. We are in the final product evaluation stage and 2004 will be the first year that Garst has offered this technology in our commercial products. Our goal with YieldGard® Rootworm technology is not to be first, but instead to build the best product offerings combining high performance genetics with this value added trait. It is easy to be first; yet takes commitment to be the best."

YieldGard® Rootworm offers growers in-plant protection against Northern, Western, and Mexican Rootworms and is more convenient and safer than soil-applied insecticides for growers and the environment. In addition, the expanded 2004 product line offers a very broad array of other herbicide and insect protection traits.

In August and September, Garst will be hosting "Garst Field Days" where growers can preview hybrids slated for next year's planting season. For more information about a "Garst Field Day" near you, contact your local Garst DSM or call (888) GO GARST.
