DENTISTRY.
I have located in Waynesburg, and am occupying the late residence of Dr. S. S. Patton. Having taken great pains to become thoroughly acquainted with both the theory and practice of dentistry, and having had an experience of seven years in the profession, I feel warranted in saying that my patients shall have recourse to competent and successful treatment. Extraction will be performed painlessly, when desired, by the administration of "Laughing Gas" or other anæsthetics.
Charges moderate, and all operations guaranteed as represented. I will be at home without appointment from the fifteenth to the thirtieth of every month. J. O. S. JEFFERY.

A TALE OF THE TROPICS.
We have read nothing in a long time more interesting than the following. Reader get out your pocket handkerchief!
Titti-Fat-Lay was a lovely maid—
The white of her eyes was like marmalade; Her skin was the blackest of inky blacks,
And her lips were as scarlet as sealing wax.
She wore her hair in a bun on top, Like a swan the nautical term for a mop!
Her ivory teeth were two gleaming rows,
And she carried a skewer in her comely nose!
She loved a sailor (did Titti-Fat-Lay) Who had been on that island east away.
Titti-Fat-Lay was the child of a king, But she loved Jack Dandies like anything.
She loved Jack Dandies; but—was it met—Jack Dandies, he wasn't in love with her;
For he fondly thought of his lovely Nan (Who lived at Wapping), did that young man.
And so, alas! and a black-day!
When an English ship called into the bay, (The Lively Betty, a seventy-four),
He took a berth in that man-of-war!
Then Titti-Fat-Lay (her heart was broke) Wept—but never a word she spoke!
But she knew'd herself, did the mournful maid,
On the native weapon, a sword fish blade.
They buried her under the Bo-bo tree,
With her favorite kitten along of her;
And the purple-headed monkeys sadly raved,
And chew their tails over the maiden's grave.
GRANT'S ELOQUENT GRATITUDE.
The magnificent order of General Grant to his troops, after their great triumphs at Lookout Mountain and Missionary Ridge, is the most eloquent of all his military writings.
We reprint it, not only that he may not be forgotten, but that the loyal people of the South may understand how they will be cared for when he is elected to the presidency, in despite of the of the same traitors who have been restored by Andrew Johnson to rights which they shamefully abused!
HEADQUARTERS MILITARY DIVISION, OF THE ARMY,
IN THE FIELD, CHATTANOOGA, TENN., December 10, 1863.
The General commanding takes this opportunity of returning his sincere thanks and congratulation to the brave warriors of the Cumberland, the Ohio, the Tennessee and their comrades from the Potomac, for the recent splendid and decisive success achieved over the enemy. In a short time you have recovered from him the control of the Tennessee river from Bridgeport to Knoxville. You dislodged him from his great stronghold upon Lookout Mountain drove him from Chattanooga Valley wrested from his determined grasp the possession of Missionary Ridge, repelled with heavy loss to him his repeated assaults upon Knoxville, forcing him to raise the siege there, driving him at all points, utterly routed and discomfited, beyond the limits of the State.
By your noble heroism and determined courage, you have most effectively defeated the plans of the enemy for gaining possession of the States of Kentucky and Tennessee.
You have secured positions from which no rebellious power can drive or dislodge you.
For all this the General commanding thanks you collectively and individually. The loyal people of the United States thank and bless you. Their hopes and prayers for your success against this unlovely rebellion are with you daily. Their faith in you will not be in vain. Their hopes will not be blasted. Their prayers to Almighty God will be answered.
You will go to other fields of strife; and with the invincible bravery and unflinching loyalty to justice and right which have characterized you in the past, you will prove that no enemy can withstand you, and that no defenses, however formidable, can check your onward march. By order of
U. S. GRANT, Major Gen.
TRIBUTE TO DOUGLAS.
Hence Greeley, in his last paper to the N. Y. Ledger, speaks thus of Mr. D.: Mr. Douglas was the readiest man I ever knew. He was not a hard student; if he had been, it would have been difficult to set limits to his power. I have seen him rise in the Senate quite at fault with regard to essential facts in controversy, and time to make damaging blunders in debate; but he really caught at and profited by any suggestion thrown out by friend or foe; and he was never excelled in off-hand discussion; so that, even if worsted in his first stages, he was apt to regain his lost ground as he went on. Once as I sat with the senior Francis P. Blair and one or two others outside the bar of the Senate in 1856, he made us the text of an amusing disquisition on the piebald, ringnecked and speckled materials whereof the new Republican party was composed; and, passing us soon afterward, he hailed me familiarly with the interrogation, "Did I give you a good turn just now?" At a later day when the Leconton struggle was in progress, a mutual friend, remembering that my strictures on him in former years had been of a very caustic sort, inquired of him whether he had any objections, on their account, to meeting me on a friendly footing. "Certainly not," was his instant response; "I always pay that sort of debts as I go along." Our country has often been called to mourn severe, untimely losses; yet I deem the death of Stephen A.
Douglas, just at the outbreak of our great civil war, and when he had thrown his whole soul into the cause of the country, one of the most grievous and irreparable.

GREEN RIVER CITY.
The Cheyenne Argus of the 10th says: A new city has been laid out on Green river, and as a result of a "little on-pleasantness" a new cemetery has been commenced, by two graves near the same place. Of the new city and its surroundings, the Sweetwater Miner of the 3rd says.
The city of Green River is laid out about a mile above the stage crossing, where the railroad will cross Green river; a city company has been formed with H. M. Hook, Esq., formerly Mayor of Cheyenne, and now one of its leading business men, as President, and Frank B. Gilbert Esq., formerly of the firm of Gilbert & Son's, Salt Lake City, as Secretary.
The greater number of share-holders in company are railroad, stage men, &c.—men who have been long looking forward to this point as where the Territories of Utah, Idaho and Montana would have to look for their supply the coming season. Heavy grad-estimated cost of $400,000. The town site is said to be very pleasantly situated, and right in this vicinity some of the heaviest grading will have to be done, and some of the deepest cuts will have to be made, on the whole route.
There are three gangs comprising about four hundred men, now at work on the road, at and near the city, and some hundreds are engaged in getting out lumber, ties and building material. The timber for forty miles up the river, is claimed by right of pre-emption.

Miscellaneous Items.

MARRIAGE: A woman for her beauty, is like eating a nightgown for its singlet.

"Have you read my last speech?" asked a vain orator to a friend.
"I hope so," was the reply.

A prominent journalist in New York, who is perfectly bald has offered a reward of one thousand dollars for a tale that will make his hair stand on end.

"Come, husband," said the wife of a note-shaving, Wall-street, shark, "it is time for us to get up; the day is breaking." "Well, let it break; I don't hold any of its paper."

When you pass a door after 9 o'clock at night, and see a young man and young woman within, and hear a smack, you may bet your bottom dollar the young man don't live there!

A popular clergyman, who was sadly annoyed by incessant coughing among his congregation, paused, in his discourse, and remarked that "if ladies would wear their bon-nets on their heads and tie the strings, coughs would not be prevalent."

Most every man will concede that it took very foolish to see a boy drag a heavy sled up a steep hill for the fleetest pleasure up ridin' down again, but appears to me that boy is a sage at the side up the young man who works hard all week and drink his stumps up Saturday night.

Mr. R. G. HAZARD, who was a delegate to the Chicago Convention, writes from Iowa, on his way westward, as follows: "In my journey I find that our action at Chicago has made prominent another General, who seems now to be almost as much in the hearts and on the tongues of the people as General Grant himself. As you have no doubt heard of him, I need hardly say I allude to General Satisfaction."

A sea captain trading regularly on the African coast, was invited to meet a committee of a society for the evangelization of Africa.
Among numerous questions touching the habits and religion of the African people, he was asked:
"Do the subjects of the King of Dahomey keep Sunday?"
"Keep Sunday?" he replied; "yes, and every other damned thing they can lay their hands on."

HONOR YOUR BUSINESS.
We commend this paragraph, from the London Economist, to all who have a "vocation":
It is a good sign when a man is proud of his work or his calling. Yet nothing is more common than to hear him flinding fault constantly with their particular business, and deeming themselves unfortunate because factured to it by the necessity of gaining a livelihood. In his spirit men fret, and laboriously destroy all their comfort in the work; or they change their business, and go on miserably shuffling from one thing to another, till the grave of the poor-house gives them a fast sleep.
But while, occasionally a man falls in life because he is not in the place fitted to his peculiar talent, it happens ten times oftener that failures result from neglect and even contempt of an honest business. A man should put his heart into everything that he does.
There is not a profession that has not its peculiar cares and vexations. No man will escape annoyance by changing business. No mechanical business is altogether agreeable.
Commerce in its endless varieties, is affected like all other human pursuits, with trials unwelcome duties, and spirit-trying necessities.
It is the watiness of folly for a man to search out the frets and burdens of his calling, and give his mind every day to a consideration of them. They belong to human life. They are inevitable. Brooding over them only gives them strength. On the other hand, a man has power given to him to shed beauty and pleasure upon the homeliest toil, if he is wise. Let a man adopt his business and identify it with his life, and cover it with pleasant association; for God has given us limitation not alone to make some poets, but to enable all men to beautify homely things. Heart vanish will cover up innumerable evils and defects. Look at the good things. Accept your lot as a man does a piece of rugged ground, and begin to get out the rocks and loam to deepen and mellow the soil, to enrich and plant it. There is something in the most forbidding avocation around which a man may twine pleasant fancies, out of which he may develop an honest pride.

GENERAL GRANT ON HIS MURDER.
While at West Point, Grant was "run on" by the older scholars according to the custom of that institution. He endured a good deal without resentment, until one day, being on mock parade, he was insulted by the Captain of the company, when he stepped from the ranks, threw off his coat, and I challenged the Captain to fight. Abbott tells the story as follows:
Such a challenge could not be declined, all the company looked eagerly on; the Captain soon succumbed beneath the sturdy and swift falling blows of Grant, and cried for quarter. He had been very soundly whipped before his pride would permit him to yield.
The young champion not at all fatigued and showing no excitement over his victory, turned to the Lieutenant, and said very blandly to him:
"It is now, Lieutenant your turn. Perhaps you would like to try to revenge the Captain.
I shall be happy to meet you."
The Lieutenant, who had taken an active part in the insolent joke upon the young cadet, could not in honor refuse. To have shown a coward's discretion would have exposed him to the endless jeers of his comrades. Grant made short work with him, and gave him a thorough thrashing.
He then with apparently as much composure as if he had been attending to ordinary duties, turned to his companions in line and said:
"Who comes next? I want peace, but I am willing to fight the whole company, one by one, if that is necessary to gain peace." His comrades now greeted him with three enthusiastic cheers. They came forward voluntarily, and shook him by the hand, declaring that one possessing so much pluck should no longer be subject to their annoyance.
It was in reference to this offer to fight the whole company that he received the nickname of "Company Grant." This name he retained until, on a memorable occasion, he changed it for "Unconditional Surrender Grant!"
