Stock of all kinds does exceeding well in most parts of this State. This prarie grass contains a gemmy substance, highly nutricious, surpassing, they say, as facts will prove, the fine blooming clover of the East. Such a difference will be observable in the runty sheep in three months that a new settler would scarcely know them—Madison, Guthrie and Carrol are counties scaling and surprise scale. scarcely know them—Madison, Guthrie and Carrot are counties peculiarly adapted to sheep—the stock is highly improved and so with other stock.

Sows litter thrice during the year and cows will come in in seven months. In Guthrie county, I was shown a heifer, not yet four years old, having had three calves—the fact astonished me, but was confirmed by others, as being a general thing.

In this region and west of this, sweet potatoes, peas, and beans grow wild, upon which the stock reed. Straw berries grow wild on the prarie, as well as other berries. At present, we have wild plums as other berries. At present, we have wild plums as the longest failway upon the surface of the globe—the Illinois Central—which is 731 miles.
