With enlarged experience and invigo-rated health, with the Teacher of his choice, who has already commended himself to the attachment and confidence of this community, to the public that they have constantly on hand and with a corps of students already drilled for knowledge, he hopes fully to sustain the high estimation in which his fellow-citizens have been pleased to regard this school of learn-The studies of the advanced class will ing. cover a good part of the Junior and Senior Course in our best Colleges. No pains will be Course in our best Colleges. The pains perfect spared to develope the intellect and perfect the scholarship of the Juvenile Classes. While the scholarship of the Juvenile Classes, of recitation enforced, where set words are important, it is our guiding principle, that the great object of Education is to teach the young mind how to think, and to express in suitable language what it thinks. We ever keep in view that "the repetition, parrot-like, of the words of the school book, by the pupil, evinces neither his knowledge of the subject nor his power to House enunciate it; and much less do the monosyllabic answers to a fixed set of questions."

If practice upon this principle gives the Teacher more labor, it will ensure him a higher reward and the Pupil a thousand-fold more enefit.

During the past year an Astronomical Aparatus has been procured, at a cost of $60. Seperate entrances and seperate seats are apopriated to the Male and Female Departments.
