Death of the Czar Nicholas.

By the Africa, which arrived at Halifax 17th inst. we have the important announcement of the death of Nicholas, Czar of Russia. This intelligence was communicated to the House of Peers by Lord Clear-endon on March 2d. It came from two points-Berlin and the Hague-and in both instances was tele-graphed by the British resident ministers at the city. Lord Palmerston made a similar statement, on the same evening, in the House of Commons. There seems to be nodoubt of the correctness of the report. The Emperor had been suffering from an attack of in-ducere bet his death was occasioned by nulmonary fluenza, but his death was occasioned by pulmonary International and the second second and the succeed-ed by the crown prince, Alexander, who is thirly-seven years of age. He at present commands the Imperial Guards or the army, and is stationed at Warsaw, as chief of that division. The late Emperor was a man of daring and unequalled ambition, of great powers of endurance both mental and physical, capable of planning vast enter-prises, and gifted with those qualities of mind which enabled him to grasp the necessities as well as the outlines of all his abaves. outlines of all his schemes. His bold, resolute bear-ing, combined with the serious, religions element of his character, made him almost a god with the Russian people, who are superstitiously inclined, and wed-ded to the Greek Church as firmly as they are to the Russian Emperor. In the early part of his reign Nicholas laid his iron hand with terrible severity upbloody, remorseless sacrifice was enough. It exhibits who loved him not, at least desisted from any further machinations against his authority. The one main object that, like a star, led Nicholas all his life-long journey, was the glory and renown of his Empire.--For that he lived, labored, and fought fierce battles, both on the field and in the Councils of Nations.— With him Russia was all. He had dwelt upon the past with all a student's love, with all a warrior's stern delight, and what his ancestors had begun he determined to carry forward. This promise has been kept faithfully, and in the midst of a war partly naional, fully religious; but still intended to What effect the death of Nicholas will have upon the present conflict cannot be even surmised at thi early day. It is said that in Europe the peace party are sanguine that it will be followed by a cessation of hostilities and permanent peace. But that is mere conjecture. Alexander was not only deeply attach ed to his father as a son, but as a statesman he plac ed the most unbounded confidence in the purity otives, the comprehensiveness of his plans, and the fidelity of his patriotism. He knew the secret springs and motives which actuated the late Emper or, familiar with all his plans for the future, an bence will not rudely be driven from that co commanded the confidence of his father when Besides, an abandonment of the campaign, living. immediately at the death of the Emperor, would be a reflection on his conduct not likely to receive the sanction of the crown Prince. Like his father, Alexander has now a historical character to sustain.--The glory and renown of Russia is committed to his care. The war commenced by the late Czar is not have to bring with it the darling objects of Russian ambition. In this light we view the death of Nicho las. It does not, to our mind, increase the chances of European policy on the part of the Allies.—Argus. The rumored death of the Czar is doubted by several of our cotemporaries, but is generally believed at Washington. Alexander II., his oldest son, succeeds to the throne.

SPRING ELECTIONS.

The Know Nothing organization claim to have carried a majority of the Townships in Bedford county at the elections on fast Friday, and we presume the statement is true. We feel no interest in making an examination as to how the matter was done. We probably have a Key to all these Know Nothing Victories in the following paragraph from the Perry Freeman, which we find in the Philadelphia News of Monday last :

"This is a strange world we live in. Strange things are coming to pass. PATRIOTISM and STATESMANSHIP are ignored.'

Tuesday, week, resulted in the election of the entire Know Nothing Ticket by a majority of about four thousand. The Democratic Party had to contend single-handed against a fusion of all opposing elements, whigs, freesoilers, abolitionists, know-nothings, &c. &c. so that the result does not seem to astonish any body. The only surprize is that the majority was not much larger.

A CARD.

An impression having started that I intend to leave Bedford on the 1st of April next, I would state that such is not the case. I still continue in the practice of Dentistry at my old stand, nearly opposite the Bedford Hotel, where I intend remaining, and all who require my professional services may rely upon hav-ing their operations attended to with arcomption ing their operations attended to with promptime

Justice to myself requires me to state that my ad-Justice to myself requires me to state that my-vertised terms (INVARIABLY CASH) will be stric-ly adhered to. That there may be no mistake and no offence given hereafter, I will mention that no of erations will be resigned to the hands of Patients un-til paid for. This will be enforced without susper-to persons." It need not, how ever, interfere in the case of those who may require operations for the re-lief of names as such operations, in the case of those lief of pains, as such operations, in the case of those unable to pay, will, (as heretofore) be performed gratis.
