The past history of the Academy will, we trust, be a sufficient guaranty of its future efficiency. The branches taught will be the same as efficiency. The branches laught will be the same as herelofore. To MARTER PRINCIPLES will be consid-ered the most important pursuit of the pupils; and while it will be the constant business of the instrucwhile it will be the constant business of the instruc-tor to impart knowledge, it will also be his aim to tor to impart knowledge, it will also be his aim to lead his pupils to make a practical application of their acquisitions. To load the mind with innumer-able formulas, without causing it to use them, would be like placing a bow in a child's hand, without teaching him how to bend it. In fine, it shall be our been as it has ever been, to lead the pupil to object, as it has ever been, to lead the pupil to
