Reply of Mr. Gildea, of Philadelphia,

To Wagonseller, of Schuylkill. In the House of Representatives of this State, on Friday last :

Mr. Gildea, on leave given, stated in the proceedings of the house published in the Legislative Record of the 28th inst, he found reported, as part of the speech of the gentleman from Scuylkill, (Mr. Wagonseller,) a half column of matter which had never been presented to the House. While he conceded the right of any member to have a full report of what was actually said, he thought it indicated an effort to advance the interest of one side of the House to the discredit of the other, and was an act of unfairness which should not be tolerated. He called attention to this circumstance in order that there might be no cause of complaint here-

The gentleman from Schuylkill, (Wagonseller.) in the course of his remarks, desired the House to understand his position on the Senatorial question the way in which he understood it, but he (Mr. Gildea) was strongly persuaded that the reasons that satisfied him (Mr. Wagonseller) would not have satisfied the conscience of any other man in the building. In his effort to exculpate himself, he had cast aspersions on the members of the Democratic caucus, using such terms in reference to them as the "pimps of John W. Forney," by which he included all who had voted for Mr. Forney. He did not feel himself included in this list, not having voted for Mr. Forney in caucus.

After he had received the nomination, however, he voted to make it unanimous; and in this act he was influenced by a sense of duty, and not by any extraneous influences. As the gentleman from Schuylkill, (Mr. Wagonseller,) had cast aspersions upon the supporters of Mr. Forney, he would call attention to the dishonorable and disgraceful course pursued by that gentleman in the Democratic caucus. He could detail the history of that caucus. The D-mocratic members assembled at the appoint ed time and organized. The rol! was called and both members from Schuylkill answered thereto. A resolution was submitted, pledging every member to submit to the will of the ma jority; the gentlemen from Schuylkill voted

Mr. Lebo, interrupting, stated that he did not vote aye, on the resolution.

Mr. Gildea replied that he stated what he knew, and that he had the ability to prove that both the gentlemen from Schuylkill voted aye. He stated this deliberately and knowingly .-The gentleman from York, (Mr. Menear,) also voted for this resolution. At this time these gentlemen were fully booked up as to the chances of the different candidates before the caucus. It is not likely they were ignorant of the position of things. It was known to almost every man of the opposition, that Forney led the candidates. It was too late, then, for these gentlemen to say that they were ignorant of the condition of affairs until they were in caucus. The nducements to fly the track were probably not strong enough at that time. A ballot was taken in caucus, and the gentlemen from Schuylkill were found voting, and one of them for John W. Forney. He would like to know if Mr. Lebo was compelled to vote by outside influences for Forney. The other gentleman from Schuylkill voted for Mr. Robbins. Up to this time they acted apparently in good faith. No suspicion was entertained that they were traitors. They had not the candor or the courage to arow their purpose, while in their hearts they must have determined upon their course

The gentleman from Schuvlkill (Mr. Wagonseller) talks in his speech about the merits of Mr. Broadhead being overlooked for John W. Forney, yet he did not vote for Mr. Broadhead in caucus. He was therefore forced to the conclusion that his speech was patched up by other parties as an excuse for his course. The gentleman tells the House that he felt it to be his duty to vote for Cameron when he found that he could be elected. He (Mr. Wagonseller) pretended to be a Democrat, and anxious for the success of the Democratic nominee, until the moment he discovered that Cameron could be elected! If his only desire was to efeat Forney, why did he not vote for some ther Democrat? He was forced to the concluon that the nomination of Robbins, Foster, or Broadhead would not have mended matters at The statement of the gentleman would not old together. But the most remarkable part of the speech the gentleman from Schuylkill, (Mr. Wagonseller,) was where he cast aside Messrs. Buchanan, Robbins, and Forney, and lauded Simon Cameron as a statesman, a model for A-, perican youths. To show that there was a difference of opinion on this subject, he would read a protest against the nomination of Simon Cameron, the authors of which were about us. As the time approaches for the election of a United States Senator, everything relating to the aspirants for that exalted position becomes interesting. The subjoined document was prepared by a gentleman now in the Senate, and oblished during the contest for the Senatorship in 1855 :

The protest was published by us some time since. He thought it was perfectly fair for the op- and Jail, osition Ade of the House to defeat the Dem crats, but the men who came here as Dem crats, who, from some unaccountable cau slunk off to fetch up at the Buzzard's feast, h no justification. It was idle for those men expect gentlemen on either side of the house ook upon them with respect. They had vio ted their word of honor. They met in cauci and then violated their promise to support t nee. Among the ranks of the opposition he did not believe that men could be fou mean enough, low enough, and unmanly nough to go into caucus, participate in its p redings, and then betray its nominee. as free to say that the opposition, while th moved of the act, cordially despised the tra They had not one word of palliation offer for their conduct. In common with norable men, they looked upon their condu infamous in the extreme.

If the gentleman from Schuylkill (Mr. Wa eller,) had the candor be pretended to have had better resign and stand another convafthe fact was as he asserted, that nine-tent the people of Schuylkill county approved is cousse, they could be re-elected. But no these gentlemen dare do it. They kno at they would be laid out as cold as wedge hey remain here, knowingly misrepresenti r constituents at home. They sought stify their course by casting aspersions up character of John W. Forney, whose in s were so far beyond their reach that it w Annecessary to offer a word in his defence.—
Few men could boast of more friends in both Parties than Mr. Forney, and his present defeat
Would do him to word in his defence.—
Thomas W. Horton, Broad Top,
Peter H. Shires, Bedford Bo. would do him less injury than some men who Jacob Nicodemus, Middle Wood.
