PROFITS OF FRUIT CULTURE.

We hear frequent complaints of the high prices are paid, generally without much relucthat fruit is a necessity, or that at least it is such a tempting luxury that few are willing to do without it. Good Strawberries sell readily at twenty-five, and very fine ones as high as thirty seven cents per quart. Raspherries com- county of Bedford, made application to the mand nearly the same price. Peaches sold, a Court of Quarter sessions of said county for a few months since at from $1,50 to $5 per bush- Charter of Incorporation, which said applicael, and we have known very fine Apples to com- tion having been read and filed among the recmand $2,50 per bushel in scarce seasons .-Grapes and good Pears are seldom offered, their nal consideration until November Sessions, 1857 cultivation taxing been heretofore almost en- when objections (if any) will be heard and a tirely neglected.

But the prices paid in Harrisburg are trifling when compared with those of the city markets. A few weeks since we had the curiosity to price the fruits offered for sale in the Philadelphia market. Very ordinary Peaches were selling at 1,50 to $2 per basket containing but little more than half a bushel, while the same quantity of fine ones (not to be compared with our Griffiths) sold at Four dollars. Miserable little Seckle Pears were held at seventy-five cents per half peck, or $6 per bushel. Much as we were surprised at being asked such extra prices for ordinary fruit, we were more so when we entered some of the Confectionary and Fruit stores. Duchesse de, Augonleme pears, weighing from one half to three quarters of a pound sold at from 30 to 50 cents each, White Doyenne, Flemish Beauty, Louise bonne de Jersey, &c., at from 6 to 10 cents each, Isabella Grapes, under the name of "Berks County Sweet" retailed at 20 cents per pound, equal to at least take charge of the Public Schools of Colerain Syrian and others raised under glass at $1 per

$2 per dozen for all the Duchesse pears he could get, and 50 cents each for all weighing a pound or more, which he sold at 75 cents and $1 each. The same person paid from $5 to $8 per bushel for Seckles and the other varieties of Pears we have named.

Our object in mentioning these facts is to attract the attention of farmers and others to this profitable branch of Agriculture-the most profitable branch, perhaps, of all. There need be no fear of the business being overdone within a century to come, or least within the lifetime of any tree planter now living, in fact it is doubtful whether too much fruit can ever be produced for the constantly increasing demand. The new method of preserving fruit in air-tight cans and jars, alone causes a demand for more than was used for all purposes ten years ago. Even if prices should be reduced one half the business will be highly profitable, and if the producer is not satisfied with his home market he can have his fruit carried to Philadelphia, or even New York for comparatively nothing, and in the present age of railroads, the same remark may apply to most sections of the

We say, then, to our Agricultural readers, plant Fruit trees and while you are planting, select the best varieties. A tree of the best variety, costs no more than the worst. It is no more difficult to plant, requires no more attention, occupies no more space, and produces as good a crop, which is worth two or three or even five times as much as that of an ordinary quality. We believe fruit is a necessity, as we have the content of the content quality. We believe fruit is a necessary, a know of no other way to account for the unibe doing the public a benefit, while he is at the same time enriching himself, by increased attention to its cultivation. But if it is only a luxury—an innocent, wholesome luxury—there are enough of the wealthy, and persons of moderate means who will have it at almost any

We repeat, then, Farmers, plant fruit trees for the benefit of the public, of yourselves and your children .- Pat. & Union.

MUMMY WHEAT-A POPULAR ERROR EX-PLODED .- A few seeds of wheat, supposed to have been found in an Egyptian mummy, were some years ago sown; and, having germinated and sprung up, led eventually to the name of mummy wheat being applied to it, as a distinct species. The circumstance led to an inquiry on the vitality of seeds in general, and a commission was appointed in England to experiment upon different kinds. A report has been made, which was brought before the British association at its late meeting at Dublin. A register of the experiments that were made has been kept. From this, it would appear that the shortest period for which any of the seeds had retained their vitality was eight years, and the longest forty-three years. This statement at once dispels the illusion as to the mummy wheat, and most probaly some substitution of other modern seeds had been made in these instances; for it was, moreover, stated at the meeting, in the discussion that took place after the reading of the report by Dr. Steele, that he had planted many seeds obtained from Egyptian mummies, but had always failed to obtain any indication of their vitality.

Another circumstauce was brought to light in the report with reference to seeds, namely that they did not retain their vitality whilst entirely excluded from air. This has been proved by seeds which had been sent home from China in air-tight vessels, nad which had always failed to germinate. - Porter's New York Spirit .

To PREVENT FERMENTATION IN CIDER .-Take a pint of pulverized charcoal, and put it in a small cotton bag; then drop it into a barrel of cider, and the cider will never ferment, never contain any intoxicating quality, and the longer the cider is kept the more palatable it will become. (Doubtful, but worth
