up to this time it has not been controverted, that we are aware of, in any direction :

At the October election in 1856 a majority of five thousand votes were cast in favor of a convention, and at the session of the Kansas legislative assembly, which met on the second Monvisions were made for" that convention. A law the celebrated Toombs bill, which Senator Douglas helped to make, and for which he voted. It provided for the registry of all the legal voters of the Territory by the sheriff of each county and his deputies. The probate judges were required to hold courts or sessions in convenient parts of the counties, and add to the lists returned by the sheriffs any names accidentally or wrongfully omitted. It also provided that in cases where there was no probate judge, or he would not act, then the sheiriff should, and if there was no officer at all to perform the duties specified, then the people might petition the governor to appoint some one to carry out the law. The governor says that "fifteen counties" were entirely disfranchised, "and by no fault of their own." Let us see : In Franklin county, one of the "oldest organized," Esquire Yocum, probate judge, was driven away by the abolition ists, as was also Richard Goulding, sheriff of said indeed, Allegheny having hitherto been an Ab- county ; each of these officers was threatened olition strong-hold. It seems that the more the with death should they attempt to perform the duties conferred upon them by the registry law. Under the same circumstances, George Wilson, udge of probate for Anderson county, was prevented from executing the law. So with Allen county; Passmore Williams had to leave in order to save his life. J. J. Barker, probate judge of Breckinridge, being a free-State man, refused counties not represented in the convention Why not represented ? It was the fault of those who now complain, and "on their heads, and theirs alone, will rest the responsibility."

It is well to observe that of the nineteen coun ties spoken of as not represented, the census was not taken in four for the reasons stated ; the other fifteen were, for civil purposes, attached to organized counties as follo Two, Richardson and Weller, to Shawnee.
