NEW SERIES.

BEDFORD, PA., FRIDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 11, 1861.

G. W. RUPP,

REED, RUPP AND SCHELL, BNDERS & DEALERS IN EXCHANGE, BEDFORD, PENN'A.

PRAFTS bought and sold, collections mad and money promptly remitted. Deposits solicited.

REFERENCES. HON. JOE MANN, Bedford, " JOHN CESSNA, " JOHN MOWER, "R. FORWARD, Somerset, BUNN, RAIGUEL & Co., Phil J. WATT & Co., Pittsbur J. W. CURLEY, & Co.,

ZESSNA & SHANNON-

HAVE formed a Partnership in the Practice of the Law. Office nearly opposite the Gazette Office, where one or the other may at all times be found. Bedford, Aug. 1, 1859.

JOHN P. REED-

ATTORNEY AT LAW, BEDFORD, PA. Respectfully tenders his services to the Publi Office second door North of the Menza Bedford, Aug. 1, 1859.

JOHN PALMER, ATTORNEY AT LAW,

BEDFORD, PENN'A., Will promptly attend to all business entrusted to his care. Office on Julianna Street, (nearly oppo-site the Mengel Rouse.

McGIRR. ATTORNEY AT LAW,

BEDFORD, PENN'A. Office on JULIANNA STREET, same as occupied by WILLIAM M. HALL, Esq.

[april 19,261.]

TOHN BORDER

GUNSMITH, BEDFORD, PA. Shop at the east end of the town, one door west of the residence of Major Washabaugh. All guns of my own manufacture warranted.

CAMUEL KETTERMAN-

COUNTY SURVEYOR. WOULD hereby notify the citizens of Bed ford county, that he has moved to the Borough of Bedford, where he may at all times be found by persons wishing to see him, unless absent upon business pertaining to his office. April 16, 1858 .- tf.

MANN & SPANG— ATTORNEYS AT LAW, BEDFORD, PA. The undersigned have associated themselves in the Practice of the Law, and will attend promptly to all business entrusted to their care in Bedford Julianna Street, three doors south the "Mengel House," opposite the residence of Tate.

JOB MANN Aug. 1, 1859.

W. LINGENFELTER-

· ATTORNEY AT LAW, AND LAND SURVEYOR. Will attend with promptness to all business entrusted to his care.

WILL PRACTICE IN BEDFORD AND FULTON COUNTIES. Office three doors North of the "Inquirer"

R. B. F. HARRY-RESPECTFULLY tenders his professional services to the citizens of Bed ford and vicinity.

Office and residence on Pitt Street, in the building formerly occupied by Dr. John Hofius Aug. 1, 1859.

DR. F. C. REAMER-

RESPECTFULLY begs eave to tender his Professional Services to the Citizens of Bedford and vicinity. Office in Julianna Street, at the Drug and Book Store. Aug. 1, 1859.

L.GODBOLD. TUNER & REPAIRER.

of Pianos, Melodeons &c., has made arrangements visit this place regularly at stated periods. The xt visit will be in October. Yearly contracts at visit will be in October. Yearly contracts made. Price for tuning $2.00. First class pianos or sale. Orders to be left at the "Gazette" office. H. L. G. has permission to refer to the following persons for whom he has tuned: Hon. A. King, Hon. S. L. Russell, John Mower, Esq., O. E. Shannon, Esq., Dr. W. H. Wasson, Rev. S. Barnes, Mrs. Freytet.

FOR SALE OR TRADE! 25 Tons of Plaster. 3 New Two horse wagons. New set of Double Harness The highest market price paid for corn, oats, and buckwheat.
Poor House Mill, Bedford, Nov. 16. JOHN I JOHN NELSON THE BEDFORD GAZETTE

IS PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY MORNING BY

BY B. F. MEYERS,

At the following terms, to wit:

$1.50 per annum, cash, in advance.
$2.00 " if paid within the year.
$2.50 " if notpaid within the year.

No subscription taken for less than six months.

No paper discontinued until all arrearages are paid, unless at the option of the publisher, at has been decided by the United States Courte that has been decided by the United States Courts that the stoppage of a newspaper without the payment of arrearages, is prima facie evidence of fraud and is a criminal offence.

The courts have decided that persons are accountable for the subscription price of newspapers, if they take them from the post office, whether they subscribe for them, or not. RATES OF CHARGES FOR ADVER-TISING.

Transient advertisements will be inserted at the rate of $1.00 per square of ten lines for three insertions or less, but for every subsequent insertion, 25 cents per square will be charged in addition.—

Fable and figure work double price. Additor's protices ten lines and under $1.00 \cdot pure by the distance of ten protices ten lines and under $1.00 \cdot pure by the distance of ten protices ten lines and under $1.00 \cdot pure by the distance of ten prices are the protices ten lines and under $1.00 \cdot pure by the distance of ten prices are the prices are the protices ten lines and under $1.00 \cdot pure by the distance of ten prices are the notices ten lines and under, $1.00; upwards of ten lines and under fifteen $1.50. Liberal reductions made to persons advertising by the year.

Original Poetry.

(By Request.)

TO MOLLIE.

Your dark brown hair parts on a brow Of Parian marble hue;
And from your eyes bright glances flash
As star-lights from the dew;
Your peerless beauty would not fail
To charm my Friend you know who:

You would gladly leap the winding brook, At morning's purple hour,
To gather roses from the banks—
Yourself the fairest flower!
O, never upon your life's bright June
May clouds of darkness lower.

Although your gentle heart ne'er throbs
With one fond thought of me,
My wishes for your happiness
Shall ever constant be; I'll pray for you while life may last, Though ne'er you pray for me.

Ah, Mollie thou of matchless grace, Beware what beacons guide; Thy beauty and thy charms will bring Full many to thy side Whose brows will be as empty as The bubbles on the tide.

As now, from sorrow's sway; But ah! 'tis vain alas, to hope, No cloud may dim thy day: Two paths before thee lie,—, reflect; se thou the better way. AMICUS. Bedford, Sept., 1861.

> [From the London Hour.] THE OLD MAN'S COLT.

The snow was falling right cheerily on the last day of the year 185-, and already there ready,' I added. lay upon the ground sufficient to make most excellent sleighing. The youngsters were en old man cares to sell him,' insisted Jem. joying the fun in the roads, the country sledges were rattling by, filled with rosy-cheeked girls at last we started for a jaunt, to test the peed and merry lads; the more elegant turnouts from and mettle of the horse I had been so tworathe city-fourteen miles distant-occasionally bly struck with at first sight, and awa we flitted past the tavern door, where I was tarry- went, followed by half a dozen good'un riging temporarily, and the season was peculiarly ged out at the tavern stables, to see anchel gay, as the holidays were passing away.

In the bar-room of the country hotel where I sojourned I had right heartily enjoyed the va- How fast he could frot I could not sai but rions samples of human character I met, and I he distanced all competitors for a mile-two, had, for a week, day and evening, the oppor- five, six, seven miles-and returned to the tunity of listening to the 'yarn' of the villagers tel in gallant style, at his top gait, whout or of the numerous visitors who congregated in showing the slightest sign of distress. Howas the old tavern, which had for many a long a splendid roadster, and just what I wantl. year been the resort of hundreds of farmers, cow-boys, horse-jockeys, and travellers of one kind or another, en route to and from the city, man keers to part with him-leastway he or homeward bound.

I had given out among the settlers that I wished to purchase a good horse-it one said. chanced to turn up during my stay at the tavern -- and all hands were on the lookout for me; ole man won't take less.' for it was understood that I would pay for such an animal as I fancied a liberal price.

but there came along, on this very afternoon to the stable as I entered. alluded to, the last day of December, 185-, a young man from Vermont, (so he said, and a guess he did,) who drove up to the favern door afterward, said:

"Well' Saltum, I think I'll trade without the said with the said without the said without the said without the said without the said wit young man from Vermont, (so he said, and I at Jem's price, however, and, about anour tion at once, for he was a good stepper, and he It's too much for a five year old, bul'll came in in gallant style.

'Who-a!' shouted the driver; and he jumped from the heavy old sleigh upon the door-step, and flung the reins carelessly over the anyhow; and I guess I'll take him to their dash as the stable boy came to look after the

'That's Jem Saltum,' said one of the bar- for the colt.' room loungers. 'He's from Brattlebor,' and he's got a good'un. He never comes down ye? with anything but good'uns, eyther.'

Perhaps this remark was intended for my seemed not to observe it. An hour afterward Jem Saltum ensconced 'Three hundred!' I exclaimed. 'We himself before the great bar-room fire, ordered won't do it-that's all.' a mug of flip, and commenced leisurely to 'No more, I wouldn't, mister, if I was u. smoke a short called it. ! had been out to the stable and ex- if he is smart and purty. He might bik amined his colt-a beautiful bright bay, with down and I can sell him in the city easy.' heavy tail and mane, well put togeather in I wanted the horse, but I let him glimb, and very stylish in action-and I conclu- And I did not see Jem Saltum till afternp, ded to buy him. As yet I had said nothing to when he turned the nag out for exercise ain Jem Saltum, however, and he had observed a and whisked up and down before the door hair, and then, as a local editor describes it, she marked silence on entering the house. I the admiration of everybody who saw h. waited for Jem Saltum to open up to me, or 'Saltum,' I said, 'come, I didn't mean to the water was about 'wo feet deep, where she some one around; but he smoked and drank it; but I like your horse. Give me a bof pulled him over backwards, soused him under,

December, 185-. The snow had ceased fall this mornin' I've made up my mind that er souse)—and start for the river!— (another spending my ten shillings I worked my way

7th. An irreproachable life. The teacher December, 185-. The snow had ceased failing, and the prospect of glorious good sleighing can go faster than we thought he could he dip)I'll larn ye to leave me a widow, and all to Wisconsin where I got an axe and set out to should so conduct himself both in precept and work, and earned money and saved it un-remarked to him, by way of commencement. He cid not reply, but opened his eyes lazily, then continued to seem to be sleeping.

'A young'un?' I queried. 'Did you speak to me, sir!' he asked, looking up.

'I was saying you had a nice-looking coft.' "Oh, yas. That's the old man's that is."

old man wouldn't agree to sell him for no :es-

'Who's the old man you speak of?' Who? Why, he's my uncle; the man I life

·What are his qualities?' 'Whose? The old man's?' 'No; the colts.'

'Oh, I thought you meant my uncle. Wal, good'un. He gets up well all round, is live years old, coming six square trotter, way down in the forties sound as a new dolar, good size, never shies or bolts, 'fraid of nothing, but a whip, and on the road he takes it all his own way. I don't think the old man'll ell though, anyhow,' continued Jem; and he turned around and began to settle himself down in his chair for another nap.

I made up my mind to purchase that cotor, at least try him-so I added:

'Is he fast?' 'I told you, just now, that he was conin' six, and could foot it down in the fories. That'll do, I reck'n, for a five year old, string-

'Yes, yes. Have you any objection telet me see him move?' 'None in the world, sir. To-morrow, ilyou

'Yes. The slipping will be fine, and I would like to buy a good horse,' I adeed, if I can light on one that does not come too high.'

Jem Saltum knew all this before. But I did not know whether he wished to sell; and I thought he didn't.

'Yes. Wal, then, to-morrow we will take a turn with the colt, and you shall see him go. But as near as I can cal'late, from what the ble man said when I left home, he don't keer to sell him any way.'

And with this consolatory remark is fell sound asleep (or appeared to) before the big bar-room fire. again, and gave him the customary santation of the season. 'Happy New-Year, sir,' said 1 pleasantly.

'Wal, yas, so it is! New-Year's dy-ana' very nice un it is.'

'How's the pony this morning,' Ienquired.
'Oh, nicely, never better. Ya, I see. You're the gentleman as spoke abou him last

'Yes; and we'll give him a trial who you're 'Yes, we'll try him-but I don't believe the

However, we got aboard a light cutter and enjoy the promised sport.

The handsome bay colt proved a 'yer.

'What do you ask for him?' said I, at lt. 'Wai' as I sad before, I don't b'heve thol could get two hundred an' a half for him. 'That's a big price for a five year d.' I

'Wal' he ain't no fool of a colt, mind. The

'I'll give you two hundred dollars,' Iaid. This was a round sum for a horse in those ays. Whether any of my newly made acquain-ances tided the seller or not, I never knew; sisted Saltum; and he turned his horse's ead

I concluded very shortly to take theplt, give you two hundred and a half.' 'Wal,' said Jem slowly, 'railly' I n't where I'll get his valoo.'

But you only asked two hundred andfty 'Wal, you did'nt take me np, eytherlid

'Not at the moment--I.' 'Wal, sharp's the word, yer know, in abss benefif, and perhaps not. I heard it, but trade. But I'm quite sartin the ole man wild not be satisfied with less'n three hundred.'

six, and sip his 'nictar' as he Cos you can't allers tell about a five yeald

'A good-looking nag you drove down today? less I do the best I can; though, railly, I don't believe the ole man would allow me to sell him any way.'

"Confound the old man and his colt, too! I said, not a little vexed at the sharp practice of my green appearing friend from Vermont. You get no four hundred dollars cut of me for that horse.'

'No, I spose not, mister. But there need not be no hard feelin's atween us .-- He's a No-not edzactly. That is, I reckon the dreadful good colt, and the ole man would not be satisfied unless he brought him a good price, I'm sure.

With these words Saltum returned his dashing pony to the stable once more.

I was bound to buy this horse, and think now that Jem Saltum knew it. But four hundred dollars was an awful figure, I thought. Still fearing that the fellow would dodge me again, I mustered courage, and before I retired at tne hoss is what we call up'n our count a night I said good-naturedly, as Jem sat sucking

Well, Saltum, we nave had a good deal of talk.

'Yas, we hev.' " And I like your horse." "I know you do."

And I'll give you four hundred dollars for him-though I never believed I should be such a fool as to pay like this for a single horse." The Vermont sharper shook his flin-mug, and drained it to the bottom slowly, and replied: 'After all we've said, mister, there ain't no man I'd rather'd hev that hoss than you. But I'm bound to (do what's right, an' at the same time I must not forgit the ole man that raised the colt. Ef I can't get five hundred for the pony I don't believe the ole man will be satisfied, an' I've concluded to take him back to Vermont accordingly.'

'Five hundred dollars!' I yelled; 'why you're crazy. Or perhaps you think I'm a fool,' I added, rising. 'Good-night, sir. I trust you'll get five hundred dollars for your five year old. That is a hundred a year, exactly. And I went to bed in high dudgeon. 'He's plaguey quick at figures, anyhow,' re-marked Jem, dryly, as I retired. And very shortly afterwards he went to bed imself. When I came down the next morning the colf stood in the sleigh at the front-door, and Jem was just ready, apparently, to leave. The golden topportunity to become the owner of a and I coveted the beast inwardly and in ear-

'Which way, Jem?' I asked. 'To town. Afore night I'm going to have ny price for this colt, or my name ain't Jem

'How much do you ask for him to-day?' I aid tartly. 'Wal, mister, I've thought it all over, and as ood horses ain't plenty just now, I've made p my mind that the ole man never'd be satised if I did'nt bring six hundred dollars for the olt; an' I've concluded I shall do one or the ther, sure as preachin,' any how.' 'Six hundred! said I. 'Why don't you say a thousand at once, Jem.' 'Wal, he's wuth a thousand-but you shall have him at jest six hundred, et you want him

Jem took up the ribbons. -The colt arched his beautiful neck, and was about to turn away. I was beaten.

'Put him in the stable, Jem, said I .- I'll take m-though it's an awful price.' Aud thus I became the owner of my first fast horse,' The landlord laughed. The hostlers laughed. Jem laughed-so they said, and I was half inclined to laugh myself at the Vermonter's management! Still I had got a fine colt-I was sure of this-and so, two weeks after my little New-Year's-day adventure, I was on the Bloomiugdale road in a natty New-York cutter skimming sha-ply over the newly made path, and beating with ease most of the dashers that frequented the then splendid thoroughlare of "fast' uns. My colt quickly attracted the attention of the crowd of horsemen there, and one among their number, who was wealthy, and who knew what a good nag was, very shortly waited upon me, and bantered me for my purchase.

·He's a good 'un,' said I, 'and cost me high. :What will you sell him for ?' he asked. 'Twenty-five hundred dollars,' I answered, without winking.

The man of fortune drew a long breath, looked the horse over at leisure, and then drew his check for the amount-somewhat to my surprise, I confess.

Two years afterward my six hundred dollar colt had become famous for his superior speed and bottom, and the present owner, to my certain knowledge, has more than once since refused a bona fide offer of five thousand dollars for his splendid trotter. He has made his mile in 2.26, repeatedly, and is now among the fastest horses in America.

My only regret is, that when I parted with him, I did not possess the talents of my Vermont friend in disposing of him. I am now certain that I sold my colt too cheap.

ago, rushed to the river, swearing that he would drown himself. When he had waded into the his flip, and looked into the great blazing fire, of him, I'll take him at three hundred, theh and pulled his head up again .- Drown yourand finally seemed to be dropping into a doze.

It was a cold night, the thirty-first day of

It was a cold night, the thirty-first day of

Well, mister, said the scamp, coolly, see brats!—(another plunge)—get drunk!—(another nin my pocket. I left home on foot. After will fail.

Somebody in My Bed.

Few of our readers have ever been placed n the situation in which our Doctor once found himself. The following is the story: "I believe Captain," said the Doctor, "] never told you about my adventure with a woman at my boarding house, when I was attending the lectures !" "No, let's have it, replied the individual addressed, a short, flabby, fat man, about fifty, with a highly nervous temperament and a very

"At the time I attended the lectures, I boarded at a house in which there was no females out the landlady and an old colored cook-"

Here the Doctor made a slight pause, and he Captain, by way of requesting him to go on, said: "Well."

"I often telt the want of female society to soften the severe labor of study, and to dispe the ennul to which I was subject." "Well," said the Captain.

"But as I feared that forming acquaintances among the ladies might interfere with my studies, I avoided them all."

"One evening, after listening to a long lecture on physical anatomy, and dissecting a large negro and fatigued in body and mind, I went to my lodgings." "Well," said the Captain.

"Went into the hall, took a large lamp and after one o'clock. "I placed the lighted lamp on the table and commenced undressing myself. I had hardly got my coat off, when my attention was atying on a chair." "Well," said the Captain, who began to show ome signs that he was deeply interested.

"A pair of beautiful small shoes and stockstrange, and I was about to retire, but thought it was my room, and I had at least a right to know who was in my bed."

"Exactly so," nodded the Captain. "Well." "So I took the light, went softly to the bed, and with a trembling hand drew aside the curyoung girl, I should say an angel, was in there

"Well," said the Captain, giving his chair a

"As I gazed upon her, I thought I never witnessed anything more beautiful. From underneath a little nightcap, rivaling the snow in whiteness, fell a stray ringlet over a neck and shoulders of alabaster. "Well," said the excited Captain, giving his chair another hitch.

"Never did I look on a bust more perfectly pulled it down-" "Well," said the Captain, betraying the utnost excitement. "To the waist." "Well," said the Captain, dropping the paer, and renewing the position of his legs.

"She had on a night dress, buttoned up be-fore, but I softly opened the first buttons."
"Well," said the Captain, wrought to the

"Well," said the Captain, hitching his chair right and left, and squirting his tobacco juice gainst the stove.

"I thought that was taking a mean advantage of her—seized my coat and boots and went code of rules is laid down, enough to govern a and slept in another room." "It's a lie!" shouted the excited Captain,

A LIE INDUSTRY .- "Sam," said a mother to one of her very obedient sons, "how many logs have you sawed, eh?" "Why, marm, when I get this and three others done I'll have four.'

What is the best wine to lead a man with?

rino-line. What is the best line to lead a wonan? Mascu-line. Why is a ship like a girl in love? - When he is attached to the boys (buoys.)

When is a gun-barrel like a robbed man?

When it is ritled.

A STORY FOR BOYS. Business called me to the United States Land office. While there a lad, apparently sixteen or seventeen years of age came in and presented a certificate of land. I was instantly struck with the countenance and appearance of the lad, and inquired for whom he was purchasing land. "For myself, sir." I inquired where he got the money, he answered:

"I earned it." Feeling an increased desire to know something more about the boy I asked whether he destroy the best display of his genius, so the had any parents and where they lived. that question he took a seat and gave the following narrative:

would often return home from work, drunk. have a never-failing resource from which to depth of his waist, his wife seized him by the Finding that father would not abstain from drink- draw. fled him back till they reached a place where way, to relieve my mother, sisters and brothers be learned and earnest in your calling. You ing liquor, I resolved to make an effort in some from want. After revolving things in my may be learned but derive the profit all yourmind, and consulting with mother, I got all the self. You may be earnest, but to no good. self—(down he went )—leave me to father the from home for Wisconsin, with ten shillings teach, which unless you possess, you must and information I could about the far west. I started

"Well my good lad," for this time I had beome much interested in him," what are Iyou going to do with the load!"

VOL. 5. NO. 10.

I will work on it, raise myself a log house and when prepared, will invite father mother, sisters an dbrothers to come and enjoy this home The land I desire for mother wich will secure her a home in her declining years. "And what will you do with your father, if he continues drinking ardent spirits to excess?" ,O sir, when we get him on a farm, ae will feel at home and be happy, and becometa sober man." "I then replied. "Young man, these beng your principles, I recommend you to improve upon them, and the blessing of God will attend you." By this time the receiver handed him his duplicate receipt of his forty acres of land. Rising from his seat on leaving the office he said: At last I have found a home for my mother.

The Schoolmaster Abroad.

SCHOOL ETHICS FOR PARENT AND CHILD.

No. 15.

Pupils should be obedient.

This proposition is almost self-evident. State government only asks obedience to the laws by went girectly to my room, it being somewhat the citizens. Divine government seeks as its grand aim to secure the love of those who are governed. Family and school government are merely combinations of State and Divine govtracted to a dress and 'a quantity of petticoats ernment, and are founded on the same scientific principles. In a state government, when the sovereign or chief megistrate, as it may be, loses direct control of his subjects-when his ngs were on the floor. Of course I thought it laws are disregarded, and his commands set at naught, a complete overthrow of the government and the eatablishment of an anarchy is the inevitable result. The same result will be effected in school government. If the pupils of a school are disobedient, and set the laws of a tain. Heavens! what a sight. A pretty school at defiance, they commit acts which are not only immoral, but unjust to both the teacher and the school, and which tend directly to overthrow the government and order which should at all times characterize a well disciplined school. When all act to please themselves and to gratify their own peculiar whims, disrespecting and disregarding the rights of both the 'teacher and the 'school, then will the progress of those pupils who are naturally studious, be greatly retarded; and of those who are ormed. I took hold of the coverlid and softly the fomentors of the mischief, the progress becomes infinitely small, and in many cases reduced to nothing. Attentive observers cannot fail ito have noticeed that in those schools in which the pupils most cheerfully obey every requirement of the teacher, the most progress is manifest. Even if the disobedience be but on the part of a few, it will injure the school and impede its well-working to a corres "And then ye gods! what a sight to gaze upon! A Hebe-pshaw! words tail. Just words tail. Just case, deserves to have his laws broken and his commands unheeded and disregarded. Too many of our teachers urge obedience to impossibilities, and, consequently, fail to procure even a moderate degree of order and discipline. A nation, and obedience is commonded to all of jumping up, and kicking over his chair - "Ir's for the nature of the child. It is the better plan to have few rules and only those which the best interests of the school require. KAPPA.

HINTS TO TEACHERS.

There is no higher office than that of teacher. If there is any one whom I ever envied, it is he who with patience moulds the character of the youth of our land. But that any one deserve the name of teacher there are certain things which he must do and possess.

1st. He must be morally qualified. Any one who assumes to be an educator, yet whose life, if copied by those committed to his care would lead them on in rain's road, is no educator but a represser. 2d. He must have a correct view of his office

He must consider it great in itself and great in its results. An office which to fill well requires more ability than that of the statesmsn. 3rd. Proper motives. Many a teacher has no higher motives than the obtaining of that which all men love and many worshipmoney. A man influenced by such motives is not the one well calculated to train the immortal mind. The teacher's motive and aim should be love to God and the glory of God, 4th. Patience. As the impatient artist may

At impatient teacher may ruin that grandest display of God's power-the immortal mind. 5th. A well-stored mind. 'Tis not enough I am from York State. I have there living that the teacher know as much or a little more A man in La Crosse, Wisconsin, a few days a father, mother and five brothers and sisters. than those over whom he is placed. He I am the oldest. Father is a drinking man, and should know a very great deal more. Should ing, and the prospect of glorious good steigning was never more promising. I waited for him to begin, but he said not a word about his horse, and so I went to him.

I can take three hundred and a half for hip the men at the war!' After sozzling him to work, and earned money and saved it unexample as to be able to say to his pupils—tollow me, and I will lead you to a Teacher who with it I can now pay for forty acres of land. with it I can now pay for forty acres of land. is infinite in wisdom and in every perfection.

