Pennsylvania Hospital.

(From Official Hospital Reports.) May 19, 1880.—John S., et al., single, never was very strong. Two years ago he had an attack of rheumatism, which was followed by swelling of the knee joints and of the hands. He was unable to walk, and his hands were so swollen that he could not hold a glass. He was confined to his bed for four months. He had been suffering with it all his life, while engaged in house-cleaning, and had been in bed for six weeks, but had not been able to get up for a long time. He was unable to walk, and his hands were so swollen that he could not hold a glass. He was confined to his bed for four months. He had been suffering with it all his life, while engaged in house-cleaning, and had been in bed for six weeks, but had not been able to get up for a long time.

SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER!

May 23, 1880.—I will now exhibit to you the patient of whom I have just spoken, and who was unable to walk, and whose hands were so swollen that he could not hold a glass. He was confined to his bed for four months. He had been suffering with it all his life, while engaged in house-cleaning, and had been in bed for six weeks, but had not been able to get up for a long time. THREE DAYS LATER!

May 26, 1880.—This is the case of acute rheumatism treated with propylamine, the first of three cases which I called your attention to on last Friday. She is still very comfortable, and a new taking three grains three daily.
