Can anybody tell who is the author of the following? It is a "gem of purest ray serene," the owner ship of which any poet might be proud: Oh! the snow, the beautiful snow, Filling the sky and earth below;

Hurrying by;
It lights on the face and it sparkles the eye!
And even the dogs, with a bark and a bound,
Snap at the crystals that eddy around;
The town is alive, and its heart in a glow,
To welcome the coming of beautiful snow!

How wild the crowd goes swaying along, Hailing each other with humor and song! How the gay sledges, like meteors, flash by Bright for the moment, then lost to the eye

Bright for the moment, then lost to the eye;
Ringing,
Swinging.
Dashing they go,
Over the crust of the beautiful snow;
Snow so pure when it falls from the sky,
To be trampled in mud by the crowd rushing by,
To be trampled and tracked by thousands of feet,
Till it blends with the filth in the horrible street.

Once I was fair as the beautiful snow,
With an eye like its crystals, a heart like its glow;
Once I was loved for my innocent grace—
Flattered and sought for the charms of my face!

Venereal diseases were much less fre-Still, 84 men in every thousand suffered during the first year, and sixty-five during the second; the total number of cases being over 39,000.

Twenty-eight thousand six hundred and twenty discharges for disability were reported during the first year, or about nine per cent. of the strength of the army. Incomplete reports for the first year of the war from troops in the field and in garrison represent an average strength constantly present during the year, of 281,117 men; in hospital, constantly present, 9,759 men; total, 290,936, among whom were 14,183 deaths from disease. The number of deaths recorded is much less than the real number, and does not include prisoners of war and other absentees. For the second year, in field and garrison, 598,821; in hospitals, 45,687; total, 644,508, of whom there were 42,010 deaths from

These mortality rates from disease are much smaller than is usual with armies in time of war, and are proportionately much less than those of the allied armies in the Crimea, or of our own army in the Mexican war. The the third and fourth year was rather diminished.
