E. F. KERR,

To Subscribers .- We are now using "Dick's Printed Accountant Addres ses," in putting the names of subscribers on their papers. By this system there can be no name missed in directing, and subscribers can always see the time from which their subscriptions date. All delinquents are marked "laug65", and all accounts due this office until that time, must be settled by February court next. After that date we shall commence a new system of colection, as we find that duns do no good. We have been and are daily, at an enormous expense, and will be compelled, on this account to enforce payment.-We hope no patron of the GAZETTE will put us to the painful necessity of instituting legal proceedings. Those who are at present subscribers and are ly as possible, to adopt it.

THE REASON WHY .- Many readers ashes! do not understand why printers make twenty-five per cent. difference between an advance payer and one who pays after the expiration of months. We have a case in point. Had each subscriber paid in advance two months ago, we could have laid in our stock of paper for the ensuing year at a little over ten hundred dollars; now the same amount of stock would cost over fifteen hundred dollars! This is but one item; many others, though not so large in amount, would show a similar increase in cost. If, after February court, some of our mill is about to be erected in this place, patrons have to pay two dollars and a by Messrs. J. G. Hartley, Wm. Hartley half, they will understand the reason.

It is a mean trick of trade to sell as foreign extracts domestic scents made of the worst materials. The price at which they are vended is less than the duty on the veritable articles. Could folly further go than to throw money away on such rubbish, while Phalon's of all. Sold everywhere.

ing is a perilous pastime, at any rate, reasons, but he could not do so. as the following poem written for our columns, by a bachelor knight of the frozen water, will fully show:

"ELM BARK*." The moon is up, and the stars are out.
This blessed night, on "Elm Bark;"
And the loveliest forms are circling about
Like sylphs, on the ice of the skaters' park.

The moon is up; but the bonfires' glow,
That burn on the banks of the glassy stream,
Shines bright through the ice, in the water belo
And the forms above eatch the crimson gleam

'Tis a spirit dance on the crystal floor; For angel forms are moving here— (The stream has ceased its noisy roar 'Tis chained in ice by the frosty air.)

But the heart beats high in each maiden's breas Or throbs in her lover's with fitful start. As they fly on their way with fears oppressed— The terrible fears of a doubting heart.

Here sweeps the sprite with the golden hair, And eyes as blue as the vault above; And the dark-eyed beauty, too, is here, With her raven locks and her looks of love.

And here are seen the dark brunette, And the rosy maiden, of "sweet sixteen;" But many a gallant is caught in the net Of the bushful charmer of colors between.

The old and the young on Mercury's wing, Over the ice go skimming along;— Clear on the air their steel blades ring, Striking in time with the shout and song. Arise, ye nymphs, from beneath their feet!

Join the throng in the "mazy dance"—

The music sung in your wild retreat Sing now to wake your rival's glance But time hath flown, and the fires burn low, The moon sinks down in the distant west— The ruddy cheeks, with their healthful glow Are ready to pillow themselves to rest.

The moon is down, and the stars are dim, This blessed night, O, "Elm Bark!" And, the angel forms that swept thy brim, Are fled, like shadows, into the dark.
