the sweetness of their tone lay On the brooks that rolled away

er the other's brink so mossy,

And he passed the dangerous rapid,
In the ravine dark and vapid,
Where the waves with white o'er lapped,
Threw their foam about his crest;
And he floated down the valley,
Where the flowers with sunlight dally,
And the birds meet nusically,
Ere, at night, they go to rest.

But they've left the brooks forever—
An! 'tis thus all ties we sever.
As we reach the mighty river,
That flows onward to the main,
And we leave regrets behind us;
For their memories only bind us
To the thoughts that ever blind us,
With the tears of Sorrow's pain.

And meanwhile, the 'ender daisy,
Having passed her dangers easy,
Now is lying still and lazy
In the current by his side;
And the blue-bell nods his bonnet,
Smiles and lisps a tender sonnet,
Pledges love and faith cson it;
And thus wins her for his bride.

Onward now they float together,
Through both bright and gloomy wes
By the blooming fields of heather,
To an Island's mossy base—
Where the birds are singing lightly,
And the sun is shining brightly,
And the moon is beaming nightly,
With a glory in her face.

Flow, flow on, O glorious river!
Let thy waters flow forever.
And thy many voices never
Bring their sadness back to me
Let thy waves, in graceful motion,
Flowing onward to 'the ocean,
Bear with them each sad emotion,

THE COLORADO BILL. THE PRESIDENT'S VETO.

To the Senate of the United States: I return to the Senate, in which it originated, the bill which has passed both Houses of Congress, entitled "An act for the admisssion of the State of Colorado into the Union," with my objection to its becoming a law at this First. From the best information which I have been able to obtain, I do not consider the establishment of a State government at present necessary for the welfare of the people of Colorado. Under the existing Territorial government all the rights, privileges, and interests of the citizens are protected and secured. The qualified voters choose their own legislators and their own local officers, and are represented in Congress by a delegate of their own selection. They make and execute their own municipal laws, subject only to revision of Congress, an authority not likely to be exercised, unless in extreme or extraordinary cases. The population is small, some estimating it so low as twenty-five thousand, while advocates of the bill reckon the number at from thirty-five thousand to forty thousand souls. The people are principally recent settlers, many of whom are understood to be ready for removal to other mining districts beyond the limits of the Territory, if circumstances shall tender them more inviting. Such a population cannot but find relief from excessive taxation if the Territorial system which devolves the expense of the executive, legislative and judicial departments upon the United Slates, is for the present security of person and property increas-

In the bosom of the mountains
Rose two sparkling little fountains,
Where the breeze with wild flow is wantons
In the blooming month of May.
Far apart they were and lonely,
Still they sang but one song only.
And the second of their consulty.

O'er the one, there hung a daisy,
From a crag whose height was crazy,
In the wind half bright and lazy,
Swinging by a single root.
But the storm rose in its splendor,
And the daisy's root so slender,
Broke from its silken ties so tender.
Down the swollen brook to shoot.

With his brilliant coat so glossy,
That the wind gave ne'er a toss he
Did not spurn with conscious pride,
Leaned a blue-bell, wild and blooming,—
All the graceful airs assuming,
Of a male bird when be's pluming,
Ere he goes to woo his bride.

But, the fountain bubbling under,
Tore his mossy ties asunder,
Sent him down the brook to wander,
To a new home on it-brink;
And away he floated sadly
While the birds were singing gladly,
And the waves were plunging madly.
As they gave the earth to drink.
