MESSRS. EDITORS :- Some poor dev- quired to furnish a list of the names of il of an author, in the agony of his its members to the Secretary. spirit, once exclaimed, "Oh ! that mine enemy would write a book !" Had he lived in the borough of Bedford, in the year of grace 1867, he would have said, "Oh ! that mine enemy were the local editor of the Bedford Inquirer !" I think I have the advantage of the fellow who wanted to have his foe become a book-maker. I live in the borough of Bedford, in the year 1867, and mine enemy is Grandmother Grumble, the "local" of the Bedford Inquirer. Poor old lady! How she snaps and scolds, and spirts and sputters, and frets and fumes!

"More peevish, cross and splenetic, Than dog distaught, or monkey sick !"

Just hear her snarl! Says Grumble, says she, "whenever you find a man" (of course a man-the poor crabbed old thing can't abide anything manly) "that takes sides with a monopoly, you may be assured he does so to the advancement of his own private or precuniary interests." Why, she is so mad, is Grumble, that she got that rcross-wise in her mouth! Well, who takes sides with a monopoly ?-Hold your tongue just for a minute, Granny, and let me get a word in edge-wise, now, will you ?- Who takes sides with a monopoly? The Bedford Inquirer used to call the Huntingdon and Broad Top Railroad Company "a monopoly" and grumbled about it weekly, just as it does now about the Springs and the man.

Hackmen. Well!-Keep still, will you, just a minute, you garrulous Grumble ?- Well! The Bedford Inquirer J. Piper Smith. doesn't complain of that Railroad Comit with praise, lays on its commendations thick .- Hold on, Granny !-Ahem! Is there any "advancement". of any body's "private or precuniary interests" in the neighborhood of the Inquirer office? And again-please don't interrupt me, termagant !- Well, what is it?

"The question is, who pays the Gazette for defending our local nuisances?"

Oh! that's where you are! The GA-ZETTE has never defended you, Granny, and you are generally considered the greatest "nuisance" in this part of God's moral vineyard. Of course, you refer to my defence of the Springs and the Hackmen against your miserable MAN.

vituneration You call the Springs and the Hackmen "nuisances !" Why? ry, Rev A. W Decker. what is your motive for indulging in Masters. this unwarranted abuse? Who pays you for your scurrility? Now, Mrs. Grumble, of the Inquirer, your illtimed complaints have done positive borow. injury not only to the Bedford Springs, but to all the boarding houses in this neighborhood. Persons who intended coming here, changed their minds after tions. seeing articles from a Bedford paper, decrying the management of the Springs. Of course, they didn't know that you couldn't tell the truth.-Don't flare up, now! Keep cool, Granny, keep cool !--But public opinion has settled down to the conclusion, that you are a peevish, petulant, impertinent, self-conceited, ance. The central Executive Commit- ted the same as other pennies, and that hysterical humbug of an old hag, andcies. Iam QUI ?

MESSRS. EDITORS :- Do not consider me as "grumbling" when I call the attention of the Borough authorities to the terribly dusty condition of the business streets of Bedford, especially Julianna. The streets could certainly be kept free from dust at a very little cost, by sprinkling in the morning. Not upon by the preceding convention. only store-keepers complain, but the people who reside on those stree's say they cannot any longer endure this terrible nuisance. If the authorities cannot afford a sprinkler, let them pass an ordinance, if they have none already, prohibiting sports and others from driving at break-neck speed.
