can boast of having rendered such ser vices to the civilized world." That is true. "No other party recorded in history can boast of" having exhibited in so great degree as the Radical party, the workings of hatred, malice and revenge. In this its services to the "civilized world" are unparallelled. They will stand out on the pages of history as a perpetual warning to the nations, against fanatics, enthusiasts and hypocrites. When the Briton reads of the banishment of Vallandigham, the butchering of Bollmeyer and the imprisonment of Wall and Olds and thousands of other citizens, for opinion's sake, he will forget the bloody history of the Tower, cease to brood over the untimely fate of Raleigh and think no more of that stain left upon the escutcheon of England by the blood of Mary, Queen of Scots; but, leaving the dead of a dark age to bury their dead, he will look around him to mark those men who in this day of enlightenment, would fix a darker stigma upon the name of his country, by treading in the footsteps of American Radicalism. When he reads of a bloody war made, avowedly, to bring back into the Federal Union a people in revolt, and finds that after that war was ended by the rebellious people laying down their arms in good faith, those people were made to bear the burdens of government, without being permitted to participate in the making, or execution of its laws, he may think of Ireland, and see and appreciate the wrongs of that down-trodden satrapy of Britain. When his attention is called to the five thousand millions of debt, weighing upon the shoulders of the American people, increased daily by the expenses of an immense standing army, he may console himself that Great Britain at last has found company in her misery of national indebtedness. When he finds that in America the property of the middle and poorer classes is taxed to support the government, whilst the bonds of the moneyed aristocracy, are exempt from taxation, he will find a parallel in his own country, and will not wonder if the bread riots of Manchester some day have their counterfor that fanaticism which would level only that it may rise. As for France, when her savans shall know the excesses of Radicalism in the United States, they will forget that their country ever had a Robespierre, or that Jacobin fury once dragged the bones of the dead Bourbons from their graves and threw them in a ditch. Russia, when she hears of ten States blotted from the map of the American Union, will think better of the dismemberment of Poland, and Austria, as she learns that ten millions of whites are made serfs of four millions of blacks, will bear, with sovereign complacency, the reproach of Hungarian slavery. In this wise, has the Radical party rendered great ser- Radical party to fasten the supremacy vices to liberty and civilization. Indeed, "no other party recorded in his- ity of a military despotism, and to tory, can boast of having rendered such services to the civilized world."

NOW, THEN!

On Tuesday night last, the speakers at the Radical meeting announced that the Republican party is committed to Negro Suffrage. What more do Republicans want to convince them that their party is determined to make the blacks their political equals? Hereafter, you, too, Mr. Republican, must acknowledge yourself in favor of Negro Suffrage or you must leave your party. Now what | perity. will you do? Will you swallow all you have said against this hateful doc. trine, or will you show yourself a man and cut loose from the miserable leaders who expect to pull you hither and thither like a mere wooden puppet?

No Chance for Grant as a Radical Can

The New York Herald, which has been the most devoted advocate of the claims of General Grant as a Presider tial candidate, has a very strong editorial on the "negro Conventions in the Southern States, and their effect on the North," in which it emphatically declares:

If General Grant accepts the Radical omination upon such a platform as the spread the countenance of John and he Radicals now tread, he will be beaten, despite his national popularity and his masterly reticence. General Scott was ciples were involved, and President Pierce, with all his imbecility, then step-

THE UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD .-- ALL RAIL TO THE ROCKY MOUNTAINS.

Not even this country of great achievments, has ever before undertaken anv industrial enterprise so important as the building of a railway to the Pacific ocean. Less than twenty years ago, Col. Benton advocated in Congress a railroad, "where practicable," across the country from the Mississippi to the Pacific coast; but his moderate proposal was considered to be far in advance even of this progressive age. And yet to-day, more than one-third of this vast work has been finished. The Union Pacific Railroad Company, organized in 1863, began to build in 1864, had only fairly got to work in 1865, and in October, 1867, have completed five hundred miles of road which has been pronounced by Government Commissioners first-class in construction and equipment. This Company is constructing the eastern end of the line, beginning at Omaha, Nebraska; while the Central Pacific Company is building the wes-

Thus the bonds represent, not a projected enterprise, which may be completed, but a finished and equipped railroad, earning very largely in excess of its ex- Peterson, 319 Walnut Street, Philadelpenses, and with a future which can- phia. not fail of being eminently profitable. The future business of the only railroad connecting the Atlantic and Pacific states must be something marvelons, and we venture the prediction that no single track will long accommodate the endless succession of trains that will crowd its entire line. Western Europe is waiting for it, as the ble hurricane had visited the southern shortest route to Eastern Asia; and how many anxious hearts in the old home states are longing for it, to join hands with friends and relatives, without the cost and risk of a long, dreary and dangerous voyage in crowded steamers across two oceans. But if the business of the completed line is to be something marvelous, the business on the sections already finished is not less satisfactory. The earnings on three hundred and twenty-five island. miles for a single quarter this season are officially reported at one million dollars, and as the road goes further towards the great mining regions, this sum must be increased.

Every reader of this sheet is interested in the rapid prosecution of this work. Every new agricultural or manufacturing community established by the opening of this road, will add to the national wealth and aid in paying the public debt. Every acre of land hithertern end, beginning at Sacramento, Cal. to unimproved, which shall not be cultivated, increases the store of food for our own population of for export. Every additional ton of gold or silver that is mined puts money in the public purse.
