we forever dismissed the delusion from our mind when the telegraph informed us that a set of wheips in St. Louis, calling themselves men, had refused to register our candidate for the Vice Presidency on account of "disloyalty !" What! Gen. Frank P. Blair "disloyal?" Gen. Frank P. Blair no citizen? Is he "disloyal" because by one of those bold strokes which make his life famous in history, he nipped rebellion in the bud in Missouri and reseued that State from secession? Is he no citizen when he has served his country with honor in high positions in peace as well as war? No braver man than he ever drew a sword on the field of battle, and no truer man than he ever claimed the rights of a freeman in this broad land of ours. Military Preparations in North Caro- der to get up a little cheap sympathy for their candidate and their cause. Joe Brown was for Grant in Chicago, and he is for Grant now, in Georgia. But it is not wonderful that Joe Brown is for Grant, or that he is so heartily welcomed by the Radicals. For thus wrote

Ulysses to Butler : "Send no more men in exchange for our sick prisoners in the enemy's hands. Every man released becomes an active soldier against us." Brown was but carrying out the wishes of Grant at Andersonville, as the latter expressed them to Butler, for he too, rived here from Fortress Monroe on with Grant and Stanton, was opposed to exchange. Whilst the emaciated forms of the brave men who had stood by Grant and saved him from defeat and shame, were languishing in prison, this heartless General refused to have them exchanged. If any of these poor fellows dared stretch their thin hands across the dead line for a drink of water to cool their fevered lips, the guards would shoot them down by way of amusement. All this Joe Brown saw from his cozy seat in the gubernatorial chair of Georgia. A little later in history we find this man Brown in the Chicago Convention, a leading spirit in it, while the guards who acted so fiendishly are pardoned by a Radical Congress. Does not this look like approval of the conduct of Brown and his guards? Brown was but carrying out the feelings of the parties who were opposed to exchange. He was sending the "Yankees" beyond that line from which there could be no exchange. It is too late in the day for the Radicals to "go back" on Joe Brown. Did he not bring to Chicago a band of ignorant reconstructed Africans from the South to help nominate Grant, and give color to that heterogeneous body? Did not he and the other reconstructed rebels support Grant then, and are they not doing it ardently now? The small beer politicians cannot drive him off by citing to the horrors of Andersonville .-He and his pardoned guards; together with the Press, all support the great "no policy" candidate to-day. Noble candidate! worthy supporters!

"LET us have | eace," say the Radicals, while they are sending Artillery and Enfield Rifles to the Negroes of the South to kill off the white people.
