Thirtytwo of these projected schemes lie west of the Mississippi river. Some of them ask grants of land extending from five forty-eight thousand dollars per mile. Others will put up but three sections wide, in alternative sections, on each share, besides the interest on its bonds amounting to one hundred and twenty millions of dollars.

NATIONAL BANKS.—The House Committee on Banks and Banking have under discussion two plans for furnishing national bank circulation to those sections of the country now destitute of it. One of them proposes a reduction of all the existing national banks 15 per cent, which will give 24,000,000 for these localities. The other is to limit the circulation of all national banks to 1,000,000, which will give $11,000,000; and this will probably be adopted by the committee, as it will favor the small banks at the expense of the larger ones .- National Intelli-

A negro murdered the Rev. J. H. Merrill, on the Gort Smith road, near Little Rock, Arkansas, on the 31st ult. Mr. Merrill was on his way home from Oats, Little Rock and camped all night in the woods. The negro came to him and asked permission to remain with him until morning. Mr. Merrill kindly consented; but in the night his guest took an axe and beat his head in. When the crime was discovered several citizens mounted their horses and started in pursuit. The wretch was caught on the railroad, below Hunters ville, and taken to Little Rock, where he is now in jail. The murder was entirely unprovoked. A scandal case is agitating Omaha. The Rev. Samuel Herman, rector of Brownell Female Seminary, has been arraigned before trustees of the institution charged with improper intimacy with one of the lady teachers. The sudden disappearance of the lady led to the investigation. The reverend gentleman confesses to nearly one year's intimacy, and also implicates medical gentlemen of high standing in the church. The affair has created great excitement in social circles, all parties having held stations of responsibility in the church and in society.
