FURTHER NOTES ON BREAD-MAK-ING .- Janet, of Harrisburg, Penn., takes exception to certain ideas on this subject which have had currency threugh the medium of the "Housekeepers' Club." Janet, who speaks as especially in relation to brewers' yeast. "Brewers' yeast," says Janet, "rises in two hours, and bread set at two or four in the afternoon, and left to rise all night, would be very sour in the morning. And then, to use soda to heard a great strapping young man allowed to generate is not making the exclaim the other day. We conclud- matter much better. Soda ought to be ed that he wanted practical advice, and used very little by a housekeeper who regards the health of her husband and children, as well as herown. It certainsuppose you had what you call capital, |1y should never enter into bread at all. It is bad enough to have yeast in it. The time is coming, I apprehend, when we shall make bread without even this ingredient." In continuation of this discourse, Janet proceeds pleasantly and forcibly as follows: "Flour in bread has a delicious sweetness that nothing should destroy. "It has been said of republies that they may rise to a certain height of national prosperity, and then must as assuredly decline. This we deny with regard to republics, but it is certainly true as to the staff of life, "There is a point at which the sweetness has departed, even before the sourness begins. The great art is to arrest the fermentation before it reaches this point."

These ports have a foreign commerce of $900, 000,000, and an enormous domestic trade, besides which we have the immense internal commerce of the Empire, radiating from these points, through its canals and navigable rivers. S. C., Jr., sends the following anecdote of Daniel Webster to the New York Ledger :-

One day a gentleman from New Bedford waited upon Mr. Webster in his office on Court Street-wishing to engage him for the defence of an important case in law. The visitor was himself the defendant, and the amount at stake in the suit was sixty or seventy thousand dollars. He presented all the important points, and Mr. Webster was willing to undertake the task .-

But the client could not tell exactly when the case would come in. "Very well," said Webster. "If you wish to retain me for the defence in this suit, I will hold myself in readiness, and will not engage for the plaintiff.' The gentleman asked what the retaining fee would be.

"A thousand dollars." "A thousand dollars !"

"See what I engage to do sir. I not only hold myself at your command, perhaps a month or more, but I debar myself from accepting any offer, no matter how large, from the plaintiff." The applicant filled out a check for one thousand dollars, and gave it to "And now, sir," said Daniel, after he had put the check in his pocket, "I "If you can compromise this business, upon fair terms, with the plaintiff, you had better do so."

The client acknowledged his thanks. and then took his leave. Daniel sent duly honored.

On the very next day the gentleman from New Bedford called upon Mr. Webster again. The plaintiff was in Boston-had come up on the previous day on purpose to compromise-and a we shall give it to him.

You want capital, do you? And what would you do with it? Haven't you hands, feet, muscle, bone, brains, health, and don't you call them capital? What more capital did God give anybody?

"Oh ! but they are not money," say you. But they are more than money, and nobody can take them from you. Don't you know how to use them? If you don't its time you were learning. Take hold of the plow, or hoe, or jack-plain, or broad-ax, and go to work. Your capital will then, in due time, yield you a large interest. Ay, but there's the rub, you don't want to work, you want money on credit, so you can play gentleman and speculate, and end by playing the vagabond.

Or you want a farm with plenty of hands upon it to do the work, while you run over the country and dissipate; or you want to marry some rich girl who may be foolish enough to take you for your good looks, that she may support you.

Shame on you, young man! Go to work with the capital you have, and you'll soon make interest enough upon it to give you as much money as you need, and make you feel like a man. If you cannot make money on what capital you have, you could not if you had a large amount in cash. If you do not know how to use bone, muscle, and brains, you would not know how to use gold; you would only know how to waste it.

Then don't stand about idle, a great helpless boy, waiting for something to turn up, but go to work. Take the first work you can find, no matter what it is so that you do it well; always do your best, if you manage the capital you already have, you will soon have plenty more to manage; but if you can not or will not manage the capi.al God has given you, you will never have any other to manage. Do you hear young man?

GYPSUM.-Mr. Williard says :- It the visitor seemed to have something has been estimated that in Herkimer Co., a third more feed is obtained from the land one year with another by the judicious use gypsum. However this may be, the increase in grass from its use both in meadows and pastures, is very considerable, and dairymen regard "plaster," as it is termed, as one of the important adjuncts in dairying. It is certain that our pastures are kept fresher and greener by the use of "plaster," and a neglect in its application for any considerable time is made ap-

PEBBLES .- Never stare any body full in the face, it is rudely impertinent. Insolent or hanghty words, even to the meanest, always degrades the person who uses them, in the eyes of sensible people.

Never interrupt a person when he is speaking; wait till he is done, and then answer respectfully.

Churlishness will render any man disagreeable, while good humor will gain love and esteem.

Never seek to be witty at the expense of others, it discovers an uncultivated mind.

Avoid unprofitable discussions, they engender strife.

Mere external beauty is of little value, and deformed of penson, when associated with excellent qualities of mind and heart, should not preclude our respect and approbation.

When we suffer ourselves to be ruled by passion, our minds resemble the puddle in a storm, and as oil poured upon the waters will allay the waves, so reason, if we hear her voice, will calm the tumultuous raving of passion.

The Rome correspondent of a London paper, writing in regard to the Œcumenical Council, says that the dogmatic definition of the Assumption of the Virgin Mary will encounter no obstacle, but that the erection into a dogma of the necessity of the temporal power is not considered possible by its most ardent champions.

Letters received by the British Minister at Washington indicate that her Majesty's Goverment is prepared to reduce the single rate of postage between the United States and Great Britain to three-pence, and therefore that the early adoption of this measure of postal reform is highly probable.

An exchange says, in a town in Maryland, pic-nics are wound up by the girls standing in a long row, while the young men go along the line and kiss them all "good night." Wish we lived there.
