

Millheim on the L. C. & C. R. R., as a population of 6,000, is a thriving business center, and controls the trade of an average radius of over eight miles.

Stranger than Fiction.

In the autumn of 1817, while the woods were bright with the variegated hues which follow the light touches of early frost, a mounted traveler was pursuing his way through a dark, broad, lonely forest.

At that moment a man came out from a cluster of bushes into the road, or horsepath, on the other side of the stream. This man was dressed like a hunter, and carried a rifle on his shoulder.

"Fine weather for traveling, sir," remarked the man with the gun.

"And for hunting, also, I should suppose," smiled the other on the horse.

"Yes, there is game enough," returned the other, "but I am not a good hunter, and can only show one bear for my day's work so far, and that is almost useless to me, because I have no means to take it away.

"I will not only look at it," replied the traveler, dismounting and fastening his horse, "but if not too heavy, I will take it along for you, seeing I am going your way."

The hunter thanked him in a most cordial manner, and then, as if to make himself agreeable, and keeping up the conversation, inquired where the other was from, whether journeying, etc.; all learned in reply that the latter resided in Albany.

"Well, here we are," exclaimed the hunter, as two emerged from the dense thicket, through which they had slowly forced their way into the open wood; "and now will show you as fine and fat a beast as you ever saw. Observe where I point with my rifle."

He stepped back some eight or ten feet, deliberately raised the piece to his eye, and pointed the muzzle directly at the head of the traveler. There was a flash and a loud report, and the victim fell like a log, his face covered with blood.

This might or might not have been the first crime committed by the man with the rifle. But as the traveler fell the rifle slipped through his hands, and he shook violently from head to foot; yet he ran to his victim and hurriedly robbed him of his pocket-book, a gold watch and chain, one curious seal, and a diamond breast pin and ring, which he fairly tore from his finger.

In the very midst of this disgraceful and brutal robbery, the traveler re-encountered the man who had turned so pale and agitated in his presence a short time before.

"I rather think you do not know me, sir," said the gentleman, with a bow.

"Your face seems somewhat familiar, but yet I cannot place you," replied Edwards.

"Permit me to bring myself to your recollection, then, and as I wish you to know me, a little more than six weeks ago I was talking to you on business, and you observed that I turned deadly pale, and became agitated?"

"Ah, yes; I remember you now." "Let me tell you why I was affected. My eyes had just chanced upon a curious watch-seal which had belonged to a merchant named Philip Sydney, who was shot in the western part of the State some twenty years ago, and looking at your features closely, I knew you grew very pale and began to tremble. "My dear sir," said he, in his usual tone of off-hand sympathy, what is the matter? "Are you ill?" "A little faint, sir, but nothing to cause alarm," replied the other hurriedly. "I am subject to similar spells. If you will be kind enough to excuse me for ten minutes or so, I will take a short walk, and return in better condition."

In ten minutes he did return, reporting himself quite well, calmly proceeded to finish his business with the banker, and then to his leave.

It was perhaps a week after this, when one night, as the banker was sitting before the fire in his library, a servant came in and gave him a letter. He took it with a yawn, and opened it in the most tolerant and indifferent manner possible; but he had not read a dozen words before he rose up with a start, turned pale, and trembled so that the paper rattled. He finished the note—for it was rather a note than a letter—worked one hand nervously at his throat, and with the other clasped his forehead. For a moment he seemed to be choking into calmness, by an iron will, some terrible emotion, and so far succeeded as to address the waiting servant in an ordinary tone.

"James," he said, "who gave you this letter?"

"A man, sir, who said he would wait for an answer."

"Then I suppose he is waiting?" "Yes, sir."

Soon there was a light tap on the door, and the banker said "come in," in an ordinary tone.

The servant opened the door, ushered in the stranger, and immediately withdrew. The latter was verging on sixty, was of rough appearance and coarse attire. He wore an old gray overcoat, buttoned to the throat, a pair of green goggles, and his whole dress was saturated with rain.

"Take a seat," said the banker, pointing to a chair near the fire.

"No, thank you, I'll stand," was the gruff reply. "You got my letter, and of course you know my business, he added.

"You allude to this, I suppose," said the banker, producing the letter which had caused him so much perturbation.

"I do not understand it; you must have made a mistake."

"No; no mistake at all. I was present twenty years ago on the 10th of October, and saw you, Stephen Edwards, shoot the man, and if you go to Jersey it, I'll have you in prison before morning. I've laid my plans, and got everything sure, and if you go to play innocent, and refuse my terms, I'll take care to see that you die stretching he up."

The banker, in spite of himself, shuddered, turned pale and staggered to a seat.

"What do you want?" he groaned.

"A hundred thousand dollars—not one cent less."

"I cannot give it—it would ruin me."

"Just as you say," rejoined the other, as he moved toward the door. "You know what will follow if I go this way."

"Oh, stay; you must not go yet," cried the man of crime, in a terrible alarm.

He argued, urged, pleaded, implored for mercy at a less fearful cost, but in vain. At last the banker, seeing ruin, disgrace and death before him if he refused, agreed to the terms. He also agreed to meet the stranger, with the required sum, in front of St. Paul's Church. Both were punctual to the fixed time, and bills and checks to the amount of one hundred thousand dollars changed hands.

A month later there was a tremendous run upon the bank of which Stephen Edwards was principal owner. It was soon broken and closed. Then the sheriff was set to work by eager creditors, and all the real estate and property of the late millionaire was seized and sold, leaving him a beggar and many just claims unsatisfied. Fashionable friends deserted the family, and the proud nobleman refused the hand of the ruined banker's daughter.

In the very midst of this disgraceful and brutal robbery, the traveler re-encountered the man who had turned so pale and agitated in his presence a short time before.

"I rather think you do not know me, sir," said the gentleman, with a bow.

"Your face seems somewhat familiar, but yet I cannot place you," replied Edwards.

"Permit me to bring myself to your recollection, then, and as I wish you to know me, a little more than six weeks ago I was talking to you on business, and you observed that I turned deadly pale, and became agitated?"

to be the villain who perpetrated the foul deed. "Merciful God!" exclaimed the banker, with a blanched face and quaking form.

"Yes, I knew you," pursued the other, "and a week later I disguised myself and had an interview with you in your mansion. You remember that, of course?"

"But," gasped the trembling wretch, "did not I pay you your own price to keep my fatal secret?"

"Yes, and with that very money and what other I could command I was enabled to buy up enough of your own bills to make that run upon your bank which broke it and forced ruin upon you."

"And what would you, now that I am ruined?" inquired the other, with the deadly calmness of desperation.

"Now that I have had my revenge, I want you to know that I myself am the man you attempted to murder and did rob. I am Philip Sydney. Behold the scar where the ball struck and glanced," and he lifted his hat as if to show it.

"God be praised!" ejaculated the other. "God be praised that you are still living!" and unable to restrain his emotion he burst into tears.

"Oh, sir," he continued, "you have taken a load off my conscience—a weight from my soul. Though poverty, beggary, disgrace and death are staring me in the face, I am happy in the knowledge that I am not guilty of murder—happier that I have been for twenty years with all the luxurious surroundings of wealth. It was my first and last crime. I have never been able to tell how I was tempted on that occasion. Now, sir, do with me as you will—only, I pray you, be merciful with my innocent family."

"I forgive you," returned the other, extending his hand. "I forgive you. You have been punished already. And God has been proper to preserve us both together; let us hope it is for our salvation, and let us so live as to deserve the blessings we receive. I will restore you enough to place you and your family above want; and for the rest, I trust we shall soon have to render an account of our stewardship in another world."

Philip Sydney kept his word, and with a fresh start in the world, and now an easy conscience, the still enterprising Stephen Edwards accumulated another respectable fortune, much of which he spent in charity.

Philip Sydney died in 1848, and Stephen Edwards in 1851.

Is not truth indeed stranger than fiction?

Still ahead.

Solemn looking Detroit, dressed as a laborer, enters grocery on Michigan avenue, carrying a chest of tea in his arms, and as he puts it on the counter he says:

"Found it in a lumber pile near the Junction this morning. I see from the marks that it belongs to you. Had you missed it?"

"Well—ahem—well—" coughs the grocer.

"It's your chest of tea, of course, and I want no reward for returning it. Right is right, and I try to do the fair thing by everybody."

"Yes—ahem—needn't let this get into the papers—ahem—nor speak to the police—ahem—and take this dollar for your trouble."

The chest was hidden under the counter till a leisure moment arrived, and then the grocer opened it in search of fifty pounds of Oolong, Japan or best green. The contents consisted of saw dust—nice, clean sawdust of the highest workmanship. It was only a dollar swindle, and why did that grocer kick the chest across the store, slam the stove around, and yell to his meek-faced clerk:

"Boy, I'm a good mind to discharge you for this!"—Free Press.

A Mistaken Boy.

Little Sandy, the boot black, was skipping down Griswold street yesterday when a policeman asked him if anything was up.

"Guess Jim Blaine is up there in an insurance office," replied Sandy.

"Jim Blaine? Why, he isn't in town."

"Well, its a fellow who is throwing his arms around, hopping up and down, and yelling out: 'I won't be quiet! I can't be put down! I hanker for blood! You lie—you lie!' You'd better go up there, for they are fixing to put a head on him, whether he's Jim or not."—Free Press.

It hurts a boy's toes to kick a stone which he has stumbled over, but there are times when the physical must submit to the mental and make the mental feel good.

If there is one town in this country without at least one citizen who imagines that he knows all about perpetual motion we should like to have the name.

It is a chap down in Indiana who is now trying to make a flying machine. He is sanguine, of course.

VEGETINE PURIFIES THE BLOOD. Renovates and Invigorates the Whole System.

ITS MEDICAL PROPERTIES ARE ALTERNATIVE, PAIN, SOLVENT AND DIURETIC.

VEGETINE is made exclusively from the juices of carefully selected herbs, roots and barks, and so strongly neutralized, that it will not excite the system. It is a powerful purifier of the blood, and cures every form of Scrophulous Humors, Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, Syphilitic Diseases, Cancer, Pains, Gout, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Catarrhs of the Bladder, Hemorrhoids, Dropsy, Female Weakness, Leucorrhoea, and all diseases arising from impure blood. Scrophulous Inflammation and Chronic Rheumatism, Neuritis, Gout and Spinal Complaints, can only be effectually cured through the blood. For Ulcers and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, Pustules, Pimples, Bores, Itch, Tetter, Scald-head and Ringworm, VEGETINE has never failed to effect a permanent cure. For Pains in the Back, Kidney Complaints, Dropsy, Female Weakness, Leucorrhoea, arising from internal ulceration, and other diseases, it is the best remedy. VEGETINE acts directly upon the causes of these troubles. It invigorates and strengthens the whole system, acts upon the secretory organs, allays inflammation, cures ulceration and regulates the bowels and stomach. For Catarrh, Dyspepsia, Habitual Constipation, Fatigue of the Head, Headache, Dizziness, Nervousness and General Irritation of the Nervous System, no medicine has given more relief and satisfaction than VEGETINE. It purifies the blood, cleanses all the organs, and possesses a controlling power over the morbidly excited system. The remarkable cures effected by VEGETINE have induced many physicians and the laity to use it in preference to all other remedies. In fact, VEGETINE is the best remedy yet discovered for the cure of all the above mentioned diseases, and is the only reliable BLOOD PURIFIER yet placed before the public.

THE BEST EVIDENCE. The following letter from Rev. E. S. Best, Pastor of M. E. Church, Natick, Mass., will be read with interest by many persons afflicted with the disease of which he speaks. No person can doubt the curative powers of VEGETINE.

Natick, Mass., Jan. 1, 1874. Mr. H. R. Stevens, Dear Sir:—We have good reason for recommending VEGETINE as a medicine of the greatest value. We first learned of it from the means of seeing your son's life. He is now seventy years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from rheumatism, caused by long continued use of opium, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A course of about five bottles of VEGETINE, however, effected a cure, and he is now as well as he can be expected to be. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business.

Mr. H. R. Stevens, Dear Sir:—We have good reason for recommending VEGETINE as a medicine of the greatest value. We first learned of it from the means of seeing your son's life. He is now seventy years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from rheumatism, caused by long continued use of opium, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A course of about five bottles of VEGETINE, however, effected a cure, and he is now as well as he can be expected to be. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business.

Mr. H. R. Stevens, Dear Sir:—We have good reason for recommending VEGETINE as a medicine of the greatest value. We first learned of it from the means of seeing your son's life. He is now seventy years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from rheumatism, caused by long continued use of opium, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A course of about five bottles of VEGETINE, however, effected a cure, and he is now as well as he can be expected to be. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business.

Mr. H. R. Stevens, Dear Sir:—We have good reason for recommending VEGETINE as a medicine of the greatest value. We first learned of it from the means of seeing your son's life. He is now seventy years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from rheumatism, caused by long continued use of opium, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A course of about five bottles of VEGETINE, however, effected a cure, and he is now as well as he can be expected to be. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business.

Mr. H. R. Stevens, Dear Sir:—We have good reason for recommending VEGETINE as a medicine of the greatest value. We first learned of it from the means of seeing your son's life. He is now seventy years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from rheumatism, caused by long continued use of opium, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A course of about five bottles of VEGETINE, however, effected a cure, and he is now as well as he can be expected to be. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business.

Mr. H. R. Stevens, Dear Sir:—We have good reason for recommending VEGETINE as a medicine of the greatest value. We first learned of it from the means of seeing your son's life. He is now seventy years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from rheumatism, caused by long continued use of opium, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A course of about five bottles of VEGETINE, however, effected a cure, and he is now as well as he can be expected to be. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business.

Mr. H. R. Stevens, Dear Sir:—We have good reason for recommending VEGETINE as a medicine of the greatest value. We first learned of it from the means of seeing your son's life. He is now seventy years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from rheumatism, caused by long continued use of opium, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A course of about five bottles of VEGETINE, however, effected a cure, and he is now as well as he can be expected to be. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business.

Mr. H. R. Stevens, Dear Sir:—We have good reason for recommending VEGETINE as a medicine of the greatest value. We first learned of it from the means of seeing your son's life. He is now seventy years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from rheumatism, caused by long continued use of opium, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A course of about five bottles of VEGETINE, however, effected a cure, and he is now as well as he can be expected to be. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business.

Mr. H. R. Stevens, Dear Sir:—We have good reason for recommending VEGETINE as a medicine of the greatest value. We first learned of it from the means of seeing your son's life. He is now seventy years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from rheumatism, caused by long continued use of opium, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A course of about five bottles of VEGETINE, however, effected a cure, and he is now as well as he can be expected to be. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business.

Mr. H. R. Stevens, Dear Sir:—We have good reason for recommending VEGETINE as a medicine of the greatest value. We first learned of it from the means of seeing your son's life. He is now seventy years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from rheumatism, caused by long continued use of opium, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A course of about five bottles of VEGETINE, however, effected a cure, and he is now as well as he can be expected to be. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business.

Mr. H. R. Stevens, Dear Sir:—We have good reason for recommending VEGETINE as a medicine of the greatest value. We first learned of it from the means of seeing your son's life. He is now seventy years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from rheumatism, caused by long continued use of opium, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A course of about five bottles of VEGETINE, however, effected a cure, and he is now as well as he can be expected to be. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business.

Mr. H. R. Stevens, Dear Sir:—We have good reason for recommending VEGETINE as a medicine of the greatest value. We first learned of it from the means of seeing your son's life. He is now seventy years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from rheumatism, caused by long continued use of opium, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A course of about five bottles of VEGETINE, however, effected a cure, and he is now as well as he can be expected to be. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business.

Mr. H. R. Stevens, Dear Sir:—We have good reason for recommending VEGETINE as a medicine of the greatest value. We first learned of it from the means of seeing your son's life. He is now seventy years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from rheumatism, caused by long continued use of opium, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A course of about five bottles of VEGETINE, however, effected a cure, and he is now as well as he can be expected to be. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business.

Mr. H. R. Stevens, Dear Sir:—We have good reason for recommending VEGETINE as a medicine of the greatest value. We first learned of it from the means of seeing your son's life. He is now seventy years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from rheumatism, caused by long continued use of opium, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A course of about five bottles of VEGETINE, however, effected a cure, and he is now as well as he can be expected to be. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business.

Mr. H. R. Stevens, Dear Sir:—We have good reason for recommending VEGETINE as a medicine of the greatest value. We first learned of it from the means of seeing your son's life. He is now seventy years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from rheumatism, caused by long continued use of opium, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A course of about five bottles of VEGETINE, however, effected a cure, and he is now as well as he can be expected to be. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business.

Mr. H. R. Stevens, Dear Sir:—We have good reason for recommending VEGETINE as a medicine of the greatest value. We first learned of it from the means of seeing your son's life. He is now seventy years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from rheumatism, caused by long continued use of opium, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A course of about five bottles of VEGETINE, however, effected a cure, and he is now as well as he can be expected to be. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business.

Mr. H. R. Stevens, Dear Sir:—We have good reason for recommending VEGETINE as a medicine of the greatest value. We first learned of it from the means of seeing your son's life. He is now seventy years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from rheumatism, caused by long continued use of opium, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A course of about five bottles of VEGETINE, however, effected a cure, and he is now as well as he can be expected to be. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business.

Mr. H. R. Stevens, Dear Sir:—We have good reason for recommending VEGETINE as a medicine of the greatest value. We first learned of it from the means of seeing your son's life. He is now seventy years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from rheumatism, caused by long continued use of opium, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A course of about five bottles of VEGETINE, however, effected a cure, and he is now as well as he can be expected to be. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business.

Mr. H. R. Stevens, Dear Sir:—We have good reason for recommending VEGETINE as a medicine of the greatest value. We first learned of it from the means of seeing your son's life. He is now seventy years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from rheumatism, caused by long continued use of opium, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A course of about five bottles of VEGETINE, however, effected a cure, and he is now as well as he can be expected to be. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business.

Mr. H. R. Stevens, Dear Sir:—We have good reason for recommending VEGETINE as a medicine of the greatest value. We first learned of it from the means of seeing your son's life. He is now seventy years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from rheumatism, caused by long continued use of opium, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A course of about five bottles of VEGETINE, however, effected a cure, and he is now as well as he can be expected to be. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business.

Mr. H. R. Stevens, Dear Sir:—We have good reason for recommending VEGETINE as a medicine of the greatest value. We first learned of it from the means of seeing your son's life. He is now seventy years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from rheumatism, caused by long continued use of opium, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A course of about five bottles of VEGETINE, however, effected a cure, and he is now as well as he can be expected to be. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business.

Mr. H. R. Stevens, Dear Sir:—We have good reason for recommending VEGETINE as a medicine of the greatest value. We first learned of it from the means of seeing your son's life. He is now seventy years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from rheumatism, caused by long continued use of opium, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A course of about five bottles of VEGETINE, however, effected a cure, and he is now as well as he can be expected to be. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business. He has been able to do his usual work, and has been able to attend to his business.

BEATTY PIANO & ORGANS Best in Use. DANIEL F. BEATTY Washington, New Jersey, U. S. A.

EPHRAIM BARTHOLOMEW, Boot & Shoemaker, MILLHEIM, PA.

Would most respectfully inform the public that he is prepared to do all kinds of work in his line in the most satisfactory and workmanlike manner. Prices moderate. A share of the public patronage respectfully solicited.

PIANO! GRAND SQUARE AND UPRIGHT. Agents wanted everywhere. Address, DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey, U. S. A.

HARDWARE! HARDWARE! HARDWARE!

THE BEST AND CHEAPEST AT Boggis Bros. Exchange Building, MAIN STREET, Lock Haven.

THE JOURNAL OFFICE as for sale the celebrated

PHOTOGRAPH MARRIAGE CERTIFICATES PHOTOGRAPH FAMILY RECORD, BAPTISMAL CERTIFICATES, and CONFIRMATION CERTIFICATES, published by CRIDER & BROTHER, YORK, PENNA.

The Certificates are unequalled by anything of the kind out. Hundreds of them are sold annually by Ministers of the Gospel and others. We were so highly pleased with the samples sent us, that we ordered a large lot at once, and made arrangements with the publishers for the retail of exclusive sale in Penn. Geor. Potter, Haines and Miles townships. We respectfully invite Ministers and young couples to come and see. For sale singly or by the dozen.

BEATTY PIANO Grand Square and Upright. From Geo. E. Letcher, Arm of Wm. H. Letcher & Bro. Bankers, Fayette, Ohio. "We received the piano and think it very fine toned one out here. Waited a short time to give it a good test, if you wish a word in favor of it we will cheerfully give it." James R. Brown, Esq., Edwarsville, Ill. says: "The Beatty Piano received gives entire satisfaction. Agents wanted. Send for catalogue. Address DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey, U. S. A.

BEATTY PIANO! NEW!!! Mrs. M. A. Soubbeek and Mrs. A. Chambers, have established a Millinery Shop in Millheim.

These remarkable instruments possess capacities for musical effects and expression never before attained, adapted for Amateur and Professional, and an ornament to any parlor. EXCEL IN QUALITY OF TONE, THOROUGH WORKMANSHIP, ELEGANT DESIGNS AND FINISH. Life and Labors of Livingstone. This system of exploring ranks among the most heroic of the century, and this book is one of the most attractive, fascinating, and instructive ever issued. Being the only authentic life, the millions are eager for it, and wholesale agents are wanted quickly. For proof and terms address HUBBARD & BURNETT, Publishers, 72 Nassau St., N. Y. 1874.

BEATTY PIANO! DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey, U. S. A.

BEATTY PIANO! DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey, U. S. A.

BEATTY PIANO! DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey, U. S. A.

BEATTY PIANO! DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey, U. S. A.

BEATTY PIANO! DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey, U. S. A.

BEATTY PIANO! DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey, U. S. A.

BEATTY PIANO! DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey, U. S. A.

BEATTY PIANO! DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey, U. S. A.

BEATTY PIANO! DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey, U. S. A.

BEATTY PIANO! DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey, U. S. A.

BEATTY PIANO! DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey, U. S. A.

BEATTY PIANO! DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey, U. S. A.

BEATTY PIANO! DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey, U. S. A.

BEATTY PIANO! DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey, U. S. A.

BEATTY PIANO! DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey, U. S. A.

BEATTY PIANO! DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey, U. S. A.

JOHN C. MOTZ & CO. BANKERS. MILLHEIM, PA. Receive Deposits, Allow Interest, Discount Notes, Make Collections, Buy and Sell Government Securities, Gold and Coupons, Issue Drafts on New York, Philadelphia or Chicago and possess ample facilities for the section of a General Banking Business. JOHN C. MOTZ, A. WALTER, President, Cashier.

JOHN D. FOOTE, Dealer in General Merchandise, MILLHEIM, PA.

Manufactures celebrated Keystone Cultivator, Threshing Machines, Improved Horse Power, Shakers, Stoves and Kettles. All kinds of Castings made to order.

A full line of Cooking, Parlor and Office Stoves always on hand. Tin and Sheet Iron Ware on hand or made to order. Repair