A MOUNTAIN ROMANCE.

A Singular Family History—The People Hunters of Long Eddy—Strange Love of Two Women—An Accomplished Boston Girl a Voluntary Outcast—An Unfortunate Daughter.

The discovery of two former inmates of the Delaware County poorhouse living together in the woods of Wayne county, Pa., has recalled one of the most singular family histories ever recorded.

Mr. Slater, the daughter of the strange being whose history has been briefly given, has not escaped her share of misfortune. Growing to attractive womanhood in the family of the kind farmer who rescued her from the life of a pauper...

themselves Rev. Joseph Israel Lobdell and wife appeared in the mountain villages of the western part of Monroe county, Pa. For two years they roamed about that region, living in caves in the woods, and subsisting on berries, roots and the charity of the people...

A gentleman from this place being in Aldenville, Wayne county, Pa., a few days since, found the pair domiciled in a bark hut near that place, and known there as man and wife. When their identity became known, the strange fact was disclosed that a lady who had been particularly charitable to the couple was years ago engaged to be married to Lucy Ann, the latter having spent some months near Bethany dressed as a man.

PLUCK OF A SICK MAN.

One of the most remarkable escapes of the St. Louis fire was coupled with one of the most unfortunate deaths. Mr. C. L. White, auditor of the Missouri Pacific railroad, occupied a sixth-story room on the Walnut street front, near Fourth street.

Having recovered her health at this place, it was supposed that Mrs. Wilson would at once communicate with her relatives and return to her home in Massachusetts; but she had made the acquaintance of Lucy Ann Slater, and, inexplicable as it may seem, the two formed a mutual affection so strong that they refused to be separated, notwithstanding the great difference in their character, habits and antecedents.

White, and God bless you." Mr. White reached the fourth floor safe-ty, but not so his comrade, who attempted to follow immediately after. Mr. Hazen was a much heavier man than Mr. White, and the blanket of cable that had borne the former gave way with the latter. Mr. White was looking out of the window when the body of his friend shot by him, glanced from the sill, and a moment later reached a stone pavement with a heavy thud.

A BRIGHT NEW SWINDLE.

Human ingenuity has devised another means of swindling the cashiers of bar-rooms and saloons. Smith, Jones, and Robinson meet somewhere down town early in the evening. As soon as they come together, Smith takes a roll of genuine $2 bills from his pocket and hands them over to Jones, who in a pocket diary notes down the number of each note.

On the coast of Virginia, about five miles from the mainland is an island upon which roam numbers of ponies as wild as the mustang. How or when they settled there is not known.

The Traveler in the Snow.

A traveler was crossing a mountain height alone, over almost untrodden snows. Warning had been given him that if slumber pressed down upon his weary eyelids, they would inevitably be sealed in death.

The Traveler in the Snow.

A traveler was crossing a mountain height alone, over almost untrodden snows. Warning had been given him that if slumber pressed down upon his weary eyelids, they would inevitably be sealed in death.

The efforts to save another had brought back to himself life, and warmth, and energy. He was a man again, instead of a weak creature succumbing to a despairing helplessness, dropping down in dreamless sleep to die.

Beautiful Thoughts.

It cannot be that earth is man's abiding place. It cannot be that our life is a bubble cast up by the ocean of eternity, to float a moment upon its waves and sink into darkness and nothingness.

On the coast of Virginia, about five miles from the mainland is an island upon which roam numbers of ponies as wild as the mustang.
