Natural Sciences, Philadelphia, Dr. Francis Dercum gave some interesting information regarding the system of canals in the outer skin of fishes. These canals are filled with a clear gelatinous substance, and they were once thought to be for the purpose of secret-ing muccs; but Leybig and others found that they were neither excretory nor secretory, and that their function appeared to be that of enabling the fish to perceive mass motions of the water, more particularly those vibrations which could not be detected by the ear. The so-called nerve-buttons of the canals are provided with a nerve fibre and an artery. Dr. Dercum has endeavored to trace a relation between this sensory system of canals in fishes and semi-circular canals in the ears of the higher

The Influence of Climate.

The influence of climate upon a constitution subjected to a trying change in atmospheric conditions, in water, and in food, is often marked and disastrous. Disorders of the bowels and of the liver, frequently terminating fatally, are prone to attack the tourist by land or voyager by sea in unaccustomed latitudes—more particularly those near the equator. The best medicinal protection against irregularities of the bowels, stomach and liver, not only from the above, but whatever cause arising, is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine in wide and increasing demand in yond the Caspian over the plains of the sultry portions of this hemisphere, and also in the tropics. Travelers, emigrants, dwellers, for East, I think this subject is worthy of every attention.
