Our Washington Letter.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31, 1880. General Hatch brings two or three Indians out of the U. S. country, and better still, his own scalp.

Peace prevails in Maine and will prevail. The authorities will prevent it, even if disorderly persons attempt to destroy it.

There have been more boisterous celebrations of New Year's day than in this city on Thursday last, but none possibly that were more enjoyable.

General Grant's party send word that they enjoyed their trip south very much. They were everywhere received with all the hospitality that the limited time would permit.

How to pay Political Debts.

The Lancaster Intelligencer says: As we understand the suit of a Republican printing firm in Philadelphia, against Matthew S. Quay, Secretary of this Commonwealth, and an aspirant for United States Senator, he gave a check to the printers for $2,007.35, which he owed them for debts contracted as Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee and signed the check, "M. S. Quay, Chairman." He had no money in the bank on which the check was drawn, it was protested and he is sued for it. His defense is that he contracted the debt as "Chairman," gave the check as "Chairman," and hence is not liable.

A Violent Grant Programme.

But can he be elected? The conspirators do not expect him to be elected. They would, in fact, be rather disappointed if he should be fairly and peacefully chosen.

Counting Out in New York.

There were more votes thrown away in New York by republican county canvassers, on mere technical grounds, it is said, than would have elected Clarkson N. Potter, democratic candidate for lieutenant governor.

PERSONAL DICTATION.

It is a sorry comment on the intelligence and independence of the Republican party in Pennsylvania, that it consents to remain in voluntary political vassalage to a man of no more general merit or ability than Don Cameron, for such is the palpable, almost acknowledged fact.

Just at this time Don Cameron is engaged in gathering up the big party into his breeches' pocket, preparatory to delivering the same over to Grantism, alias Imperialism.

Rev. Dr. James Calder, President of State College, will read an essay at the Pennsylvania fruit growers society meeting, at Bethlehem, Pa., on the 21st and 22d of this month, on the "Uses and Abuses of Pruning."

A Dauphin County Preacher Muled in $225.00 Damages for Slandering a Farmer.

Luther C. Shammo, a farmer residing in Lower Paxton township, near Ringtown, brought suit for slander against Rev. Simon Mower, a preacher of the United Brethren church, for the purpose of recovering damages.

Counting Out in New York.

The state treasurer should be careful not to mislay any state bonds, for another investigating committee would bankrupt the treasury.
