HINTS ON HORSE KEEPING .- The wide stall is a luxury, and ought to be six, or even ten feet wide, if room can be spared. Loose boxes are important for horses of great value; in such stalls they can get perfect repose by changing their position, recover from the fatigue of a hard day's drive, and be ready for their task the next day. The best food adapted to the horse is oats and hay of the best quality, occasionally varied with a bran mash, with turnips or carrots as an alternative. The growth and development of bone and muscle depend greatly on the food they eat. It is important to select such as contains all the elements needed to form the bone and muscle of the horse. It is self-evident that the nutritive matter supplied by the food must be equal to the exhaustion or natural waste of the body, to keep up condition. The horse that is about to be driven on a journey needs hardening by exercise-preparing by sweating out the body to purify and increase the circulation of the blood and also by hand-rubbing the legs to make them firm and elastic-a ation in some degree corresponding with that attained by a horse that is daily driven on the road for ordinary work. For one week from the start they need daily exercise, commencing with eight or ten miles, and gradually increasing to twenty per day. This exercise, with appropriate food, will harden their muscles, strengthen their limbs, and prepare them to perform their tasks without giving out on the road, materially declining in flesh, or seriously exhausting their physical powers. If we perform long drives with horses accustomed to short work only, the sudden transition from indolence to great exertion will relax their muscles, weaken their joints, depress their spirits and break down their constitution. The leading cause of so many valuable horses being spoiled by long drives is being short of work. They are not prepared for such severe exertions. Condition will prepare their work cheerfully, last out with sound limbs, and prepare their constisutional vigor for future usefulness.

DRY EARTH AS BEDDING FOR STOCK. -There is nothing more useful in promoting the health and comfort of stock during the winter season, when ani-mals have to be housed and fed, than dry earth. While it is the most abundant, cheapest and easily acquired of all absorbents and disinfectants, it is almost entirely neglected. Straw makes a very imperfect bedding. It serves no purpose whatever, as an absorbent and only indifferently well for keeping the animals clean. Farmers who have comfortable barns and stables for their stock should, during the dry season in the fall, and before freezing commences, gather from roads and sources of supply that are convenient, and store under cover, enough pulverized dry earth to keep the stalls and sleeping apartments of their stock well supplied through the winter. A good bed of dry earth is far more comfortable for hogs than one of straw, but both should be used. For keeping the stables where milch cows are sheltered and fed, clean and sweet, fine dry earth is superior to anything else. The liquid voiding of the animals is absorbed and all smells prevented from pervading the premises.

A dusting of dry earth banishes vermin from stock, and is at once the simplest, most convenient and harmless of all remedies for, or prevention of, ver- Ten drops in a wine glass of water afmin. As a saver of manure for those who value this source of farm wealth, can be similarly used but is not so paldry earth is the most complete. There is nothing more desirable than clean, sweet cow-stables if good milk and butter are objects, and no other means will achieve this end so thoroughly, so conveniently and without extra expense, as to have convenient for use through the winter a supply of dry earth. Musty hay and damaged grain cannot be fed to stock with impunity.

Dr. C. Huter, a German savant, of Griefswalb, has devised a simple arrangement which demonstrates the circulation of the blood in the human body by making it visible. What is known as Purkinje's experiment previously enabled an observer to witness the circulation in his own retinal blood vessels; but now, for the first time, can the flow of the vital fluid in one person be watched by another, and that, we are assured, with sufficient accuracy to detect anything abnormal, and to obtain invaluable assistance in the diagnosis of disease. Dr. Huter's method is as fellows: The patient's head being fixed in a frame, on which is a contrivuce for supporting a microscope and a lamp, his lower lip is drawn out and fixed on the stage of the microscope by means of clips, the inner surface being uppermost, and having a strong light thrown upon it by a condenser. When these preparations are completed all the observer has to do is to bring the microscope to bear on the surface of the lip, using a low-power objective, and focusing a small superficial vessel. At once he sees the endless procession of the blood corpuscles through the minute cipillaries the colorless ones appearing like white specks dotting the red stream Dr. Huter asserts that from taking

Several other metallic oxides and matters may be mixed with the cenent, so as to suit the quality or the color of the cement to the nature of the work to be produced, but the two essential compounds are yellow oxide of lead and glycerine. The proportions of oxide of lead and glycerine vary according to the consistency of the cement it is desired to produce. The proportion of glycerine will of course be larger for a soft cement than for a stiff coment; it is not necessary therefore, to specify the exact proportion of each of the two essential compounds. Liver Complaint. This disease may be said to proceed almost invariably from the stomach being out of order in the first place. By the stomach being out of order, the blood also gets out of order; and why? All the bood in the human body passes the ough the liver every few minaries to have the billious matter separated from it. If there be any scrolulous trink or other impurity in the blood, it will surely be deposited in the liver along with the blie. By and by, however, these impurities increasing, will render the blood watery, and render its motion torpid; then is will cease to perform its duty of straining out the bile. Only pois n will be left in the liver; and the result will be an obstructed, inflamed and swollen liver, ending in disease. Such is the and swollen liver, ending in disease. Such is the theory, and such the climax, as proven by facts. The symptoms crowd rapidiv upon one another, —a continued pain or tenderness in the right side, inducing emaciation and weakness; cough with a vegetional to developed. with expectoration dyspepsia, high-colored urine, yellowness of the eyes fever, a daquick pulse. Consumption, Gravel and Calculous Deposits, and varieties of the above complaints to which sometimes are given specious asines. We assert that there is no known remedy that possesses the curative power over these diseases that Rabway's Resolvent furnishes. It cures step by step surely, from the foundation, and restores the injured parts to their sound condition. The wastes of the body are stopped and healthy blood is supplied to the system, from which new material is formed. This is the first of rective power of Rabway's Resolvent. In cases where the system has, been salivated and Mercury, Quicksilver, Corrosive Sublimate have accumulated and become deposited in the bones, joinly, etc., causing caries of the bones, ricke's, soinal curvatures, contortions, white swehing, various values of the disease from the system.

If those who are taking these medicines for the cure of Chronic, Ser Julous or Syphilitic diseases, however slow may be the cure, "leel better," and find their general health improving, their fiesh and weight increasing, or even keeping its own, is a sure sign that the cure is progressing. In these diseases the path at either gets better or worse—the virus of the disease is not inactive; if not arrested and driven from the blood it will spread and continue to undermine the constitution. As soon as the Sarsathe blood it will spread and continue to u der-mine the constitution. As soon as the Sarsa-PARILLIAN makes the patient fielde the every hour you will grow better and increase in health strength and flesh.
