INDIAN SUMMER.-Indian Summer is a period of warm, pleasant weather which usually occurs every year over the Norhern portion of the United States, after Atumnal storms, and often continuing for two or three weeks. It is not regular in the period of its recurrence, but usually comes about the middle of November. It is characterized by a clear sky, and by a hazy or smoky atmosphere, especially near the horizon. The name is said to be authorities say that it is so called by the Indians themselves, who regard this season as the gift of the God of the Southwest, who sends the Southwest winds, and to whom they believe their souls go after death.

For the Millheim Journal. An Agreable Surprise.

Last Thursday the pastor of the Madisonburg Reformed Congregation sent a me ssenger to all the members of that Church, with a request to meet on the following morning at their New Church to attend to some very important business. As a matter, of course, every one was inquisitive to know what this "very important business" should be. Inquiries were made to and out, but no one knew. No alternative was left but patiently wait until next morning. Hence on Friday, early in the morning, the request of the pastor was obeyed-and nearly all the members came to see "what in the world" they find? Why, here was Mr. B. M. Royer with his team, and on the wag--Church Dedication .- On Nov. Shafer." On Thursday night while Mr. Ralph Spigelmyer was sleeping tranquilly in in his bed, dreaming perchance of the final triumph of the :Greenback cause, he was suddenly awakened by a noise which sounded to him as if national banks, usury, monopolies, subsidies, together with the Burlingame treaty had all toppled over and fallen with a crash into one conglomerated heap of ruins. But upon striking a light and finding his pants and vest missing, he took in the situation at once, and concluded that the racket was made by a human wretch, who had invaded the house for the purpose of robbing him of his personal effects, and who in his hasty retreat was getting down stairs head foremost. And so it proved to be: the robber had gotten away with his clothing which contained Ralph's pocket book, watch keys and other articles of less importance. Fortunately however the "representative value" in the pocket book, to the amount of nearly a hundred dollars was not greenback nor yet specie but bank checks, which the burglar prefered not to take along. On the following fmorning the clothing was found near Motz's mill, where it is supposed the pockets were searched. Nothing was missing except a pocket comb and a valuable watch.
