The appointment of Stanley Matthews as a judge of the supreme court of the United States is not only a most disgraceful exhibition of nepotism on the part of the fraudulent president, but when considered in connection with the history of the returning board rascality by which Mr. Hayes was foisted into the presidency it is an offense to common decency and common honesty. Besides it is objectionable on account of being virtually a second appointment to the supreme bench from the state of Ohio. It is against public policy, too, because Mr. Matthews is an attorney for the Pacific railroad companies and because the supreme court will soon be called upon to readjust the case involving the constitutionality of the Thurman act, which requires those corporations to fulfill their contracts with the government. Hence there should be no hesitation on the part of the senate to reject the appointment. Mr. Hayes ought to be sharply rebuked for selecting a member of his own family for this high position when he had his choice among a hundred republican jurists and lawyers of better standing than Mr. Matthews. He should be sternly reminded that the people have not condoned the trickery and fraud by which he was awarded the presidency, notwithstanding the fact that they have tolerated him in an office to which he was never elected. He should be taught, too, in the most impressive manner that there are other states in the Union besides Ohio. The rejection of this odious and impudent nomination will, if we mistake not, be hailed with delight by men of all parties throughout the country.—Patriot.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 5, '81.
In four days Gen. Garfield will be declared to have been elected President of the United States, under the forms of a resolution which passed the Senate on Wednesday last, and which the House will adopt in a day or two. It is simply the resolution under which most previous counts have been made. It has the endorsement, not only of previous Congresses, but of nearly every member of the present Congress. The count will be made by tellers. This is as declared in the Senate, only a makeshift for the present occasion, but there is no reasonable hope that congress will at an early day adopt a mode of procedure to govern in all such cases. There is a general desire in both Houses to do so.
Aside from politics altogether, it is a gratifying fact, that the President to be counted in on Wednesday, and inaugurated in less than a month, possesses the regard of a vast majority of Congressmen, and of other public men, in the country. It is pleasant to say, too, that his course since the election has been all that could be desired. The intentions of no President elect were ever kept more to himself.

Never, apparently, were less promises made, or injudicious declarations of future "policy." Except Mr. Blaine it is doubtful if any man living has an assurance of a Cabinet position. From what is said by those supposed to be most in the General's confidence, I judge that New York will have the Secretaryship of the Treasury, notwithstanding what has been published about that position going to a Western man. And as to "policy," I am more than ever convinced that, so far as the administration is concerned, we shall have little of the subjects which have for ten or twelve years taken up the time in the executive branch of the government. I mean sectional questions, and those growing out of the civil war. I believe an earnest attempt will be made to substitute others for them.

Not one man believes to-day in an extra session of Congress where there were confident of, one week ago. It is yet too early to say that the two Houses will agree either upon a funding or a Reapportionment bill but there is no doubt of the passage of all appropriation bills. As to the funding measure, it is thought probable that a compromise will be reached by putting the interest on bonds at 3 per cent, and on Treasury, at three. There is so much diversity of opinion among members of the House as to the number of Representatives to be provided for in a Reapportionment bill, and it being a matter in the details of which the senate never interposes, so that a conference committee is not to be expected, there is a general opinion that no agreement will be reached during the session.

Mr. Garfield says he is going to make the republican party in the south "respectable." But hadn't he better begin nearer home—say in Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York?
