The best remedy for all these troubles with the milk is to administer a free dose of salts, one pound of sulphate of soda (Glauber salts) or of sulphate of magnesia (Epsom salts,) being dissolved in warm water, by means of a common drenching horn: and after this has operated, a daily dose of one ounce of hyposulphite of soda may be given with benefit, for two weeks so as to effectually free the system from all acidity. This salt is a most valuable medicine in the dairy on account of its and a pound or two of it may be beneficially kept for use. It is readily taken when powdered and sprinkled over a mess of scalded bran or some cut feed and it will be found useful in all these cases of trouble with milk. The improper behavior of milk in the churn is one altogether to the after management of the milk and requires special consideration.

ONE of the strong points in English farming was lately emphazised as follows by Prof. Roberts of Cornell University. "Herein, says he, "I am satisfied' lies the secret of England's success in raising larger crops. It would take away the breath of a prairie farmer to hear even an Englishmans enumeration of the "spuddings," the 'grubbings,' the 'twitchings, the barrowings, the cross harrowing, the rollings and crushings,' that a heavy elay field is subjected to before it is considered ready for wheat. "What is this all for? Simply to unlock the full storehouse of nature. That it is full has been proven time and again By actual analysis it is found that an average soil contains, in the first six inches, plant food enough for from fifty to one hundred and flity full crops on time commercial manures at forty dollars per ton, which are really worth only twenty-five, to enrich cloddy the less, only awaiting a little judicious application of brain and muscle to set it free. "If these hastily jotted facts and impressions are the means of inducing my fellow farmers to remove to give the fields an additional crossharrowing or two before casting in the seed, and asking the Lord to bless the labor of their hands, my object will have been attained."

HEALTHFULNESS OF PLANTS .- Great ressons why country life is so much more healthful than city life are: the country is not closely built, therefore the air has fuller sweep and is purer. and also there is abundance of plant life-- grass, trees, bushes-growing. sending out abundance of ozone, as well as sweet fragrance. It we are, none of us, so rich as the Rothschilds. yet we could have a few plants, and more of us would have them did we know their exceeding healthfulness. If your yard is, like many city ones, all paved, take up three or four bricks, letting one remain next the house wall to avoid dampness. Dig out all the send and old earth which has long been kept from sunlight below, and cover ever the hole with good fresh earth. Into while paying their fares-they must this opening transplant, if you wish, a rapid climber, a honeysuckle or wisteris, or, if something slower, a noisette or climbing rose. Fill all up with good earth; water daily; give strong twine or treliis work as support. And a few years later, when your windows are twelve rubs are enough to make a long festooned with waving delicate sprays of wisteria, with fragrant blossoms of honeysuckie or clusters of June roses, the air will certainly be sweeter to you and the prospect more inviting! One great trouble is, most city houses are rented, and tenants generally care little about the property which belongs to another; but this is a matter all parties are interested in.

TAKING DOWN TOBACCO .- This term applies to taking the tobacco plants hanging upon poles or laths in the shed or curing barns and placing them in "ranks" previous to stripping the leaves from the stalks. The work can only be done properly when the tobacco is in good condition for handling, that is, when the leaves are sufficiently damp to make them soft and pliable.

The past fall and winter has been so cold and dry that tobacco has rarely been in this condition, and consequently a large proportion of tobacco is yet hanging in the barns where it is impossible to work at it until softened by warm, moist weather.

It is very important that tobacco should be in good condition for handling when it is taken down. If too dry it can only be put in good condition by artificial means, which endangers loss from damage from the most experienced and careful hands, and then only by additional cost. It is sometimes desirable to take tobacco down when it is not sufficiently damp. In such cases it can be dampened by sprinkling warm water from a sprinkling can from overhead, down upon the hanging plants.

Among the replies to an advertisement of a musice committee for a candidate for organist, music teacher, etc., a vacancy having occurred by the resignation of the organist in office, was the following: "Gentlemen I noticed your advertisement for an organist and music teacher, either lady or gentleman. CROUSTADES OF CHICKEN .- Cut the crumb of a loaf of bread into slices two inches thick, and then with a round paste cutter, about two inches in diameter, cut out of each slice as many pieces as possible. With another paste cutter, about one and a half inches in diameter, make a mark on one side of each cylinder of bread crumb. When all are ready, fry them a golden color in very hot lard. A deep frying pan should be used, and plenty of lard, so that the croustades fairly swim in the fat. When done, lay them on a sieve in front of the fire to drain, and afterward remove the cover (marked with the smaller paste cutter), and with the handle of a teas oon scoop out all the inside of each croustade. Mince finely some remnants of roast or boiled chicken, free from skin, etc., add an equal quantity of ham or tongue, as well as a small quantity of mushroom, also finely minced. Toss the whole in a with a pinch of flour; add white pepmoisten, if necessary, with a little white stock. Stir in off the fire, the yolk of an egg, beaten up with the juice of half a lemon; fill the croustades with this mince, put a button mushroom on the top of each, cover them mould and pour a little jelly in the bottom about half an inch in depth; when it stiffens put a sprig of parsley in the centre, spreading the leaves and leaving the stem up; pour in a little more half set jelly, and when it hardens cut a hard-boiled egg in long slices lay these upon it, add a layer of jelly slices of the chicken, flavord weil with pepper and salt, a lining of three slic s of lemon around the edges of antiseptic and alterative properties, the mould, more strips of chicken and a finishing layer of the jelly. Set it away to cool. Do not let your jelly in the pitcher stiffen while you are putting on the layers. Keep them near the stove, and make up your mould in a cold window. Turn out of the mould

Wicked for Clergymen

Rev .---, Washington, D. C., writes: 'I believe it to be wrong and even wicked for clergymen or other public men to be led into giving testimonials to quack doctors or vile stuffs called medicines, but when a really meritorious article made of valuable remedies known to all, that all physicians use and trust in daily, we should freely commend it. I therefore cheerfully and heartily commend Hop Bitters for the good they have done me and my friends, firmly believing they have no equal for family use. I will not be without them."-New York Baptist

> A Wool Bed .- One of the best kinds of beds for sleeping on is a wool bedabout thirty-five pounds of washed and carded medium or coarse common wool-made into the form of a mattrass with common bed ticking. I have had one in use for over twenty years, and seems as soft and as good as when new. We like it very much for a summer bed but sometimes, in cold weather, put on top of it a light feather bed, as this is rather warmer than any kind of a mattrass. Wool is as low now as it will be, and will make as cheap a bed as any material so lasting and

Having had numberless inquiries for advertising cards from ladies in all parts of the country who are interested in the prevailing fashion of making "Card Collections," we are having printed for them a set of seven beautiful cards, each in six colors and on a gold background, in the very highest degree of art, illustrating Shakspeare's "Seven Ages of Man." We have spared no expense in these cards-they are simply little art gems. Our only aim has been to publish the finest cards yet shown. Applications for them have come in so rapidly that nearly the whole edition is engaged before the receipt by us of the cards from the artist. We have therefore been obliged to adopt the following plan for the distribution of the remainder: No more of the gilt Shakspeare cards, seven in the series, will be sent excepting upon the receipt of a statement from a grocer that the person applying for the cards has bought of him on that day at least saucepan with a piece of butter, mixed seven bars of Dobbins' Electric Soap, with price paid for same. All applyper, salt and powdered spice to taste; ing in this manner will receive the full set of seven cards gratis by mail. This will insure us that our friends and patrons get their share of these beautiful designs, aithough it in no manner repays us for the cost of the cards. Your grocer has the soap or will get it. with a sheet of oiled paper, put them and the purchase by you of seven bars into the oven to get thoroughly hot, of it at one time will secure for you gratis seven really beautiful cards. Buy the soap of them, send us their bill, and we and when hard lay in long delicate will mail you the cards free. Yours respectfully, I. L. CRAGIN & Co., 116 South 4th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Obtrusive Advertising.

It depends largely upon what it is that is advertised—the temper and teeling of the public toward the subject matter, whether the advertiser can afford to steal in upon the readers attention by the use of some favorite quotation-or riding in upon some current topic of discussion. Some advertisers have run against a fatal snag trying to imitate the method of Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup, Cough Syrup etc., in this class of advertising, meeting with disgust and rebuke. The fact is the advertiser, when he enters in this way the presence of the reader unbidden, must carry with him his ownwelcome, this unceremonious manner of approach presupposes a certain favoritis.n. A popular pastor of one of our city churches recently made allusion from the pulpit to Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup as illustrating how dear medeciaes even become to us when known to alleviate the ails and ills of life. There must be truth and merit when the advertiser can shake hands with such high company. -Indianapo-lis Journal.

It is now endorsed by the most intelligent physicians or all schools and admitted to be the nearest to an infallible remedy known.
